HENRY PETENSON & CO., Publishers,

PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, JANUARY 21, 1871, Price 45.50 A Wear, in Advance.

GOD'S SANCTUARY.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Oh! if Ged speaketh anywhere,
'Tis in the pure, the unbounded sir;
Seidom is born the mystic seer
Within the city's atmosphere;
Not often from its smoke and slime
Rise up the men who lead their time—
The spirits fearless and subline, Whom Ged has given unto mau
Expounders of his perfect plan,
Bright suns, round whom the centuries
Revolve like planets in the skies;
Centres of systems which still roll Upheld by the universal soul.
Far from the fret of town and mart,
Poet and prophet dwell apart.
Out from the ascred solitude
Of Indian forests came the Buddh;
Beside the Suiledge, wild and strong Rose up, in that rude, primal tongue,
The dark-haired Aryan prophet's song;
The monk of Germany unfuried
The flag of truth that woke the world;
The strong see waves to Channing broug
Of that fair freedom which he taught;
And in the decert's twilight hush
The Lord spoke from the burning bush
To him who, is his manheed's lore,
The word again to Israel bore. The word again to Israel bore.

Go forth into the air, the word Of God upon its wings is borne; And in the ever sacred morn Thou in thy solitude shall bear What the old saints and sages heard. And mounting in thought's lottier sphere, If thou dost strive most earnestly, If thou dost heed most reverently, Perchance still further shalt thou see Than they into the mystery. Thyself may be the messenger Whom God shall checke new truth to bear; Thyself shall share the cestary, Thyself shall share the costasy, Thyself mankind shall glorify Thyself shall free the century ! RUPERT.

STRONGHAND;

A BOMANCE OF THE PRAIRIES.

BY GUSTAVE AIMARD.

AUTHOR OF "PRAIRIE PLOWER," "QUEEN OF THE SAVANNAH," ETC., ETC.

CHAPTER V.

When the fight was over, and order restored at the post, the captain bade his lieutenant have the bodies lying on the battle-field picked up and hung by the feet to the trees on the piain, so that they might become the prey of wild beasts, though not until they had been decapitated. The heads were to ressain exposed on the wails of the forts, and act as an object of terrer to the bandits, who, after this act of summary justice, would not venture to approach the neighborheed of the post.

Then, when all these orders had been given, the commandant returned to his residence, where Don Ruiz had already preceded him in order to reassure his sister as to the result of the fight. Don Marcos was radiant: he had gained a great advantage—at least THE STAY IN THE POREST.

suit of the nght. Don Marcos was radiant: exclamation of delight, and ran up to me, he had gained a great advantage—at least he thought so—over the border ruffians; he had indicted on them an exemplary punishment at the expanse of an insignificant loss, and supposed that for a long time no one would venture to attack the post entrusted to him.

Infortunately the suppose of the least two hours, and have put a dozen soldiers on your heels, who could not possibly find you.

"I looked at the colonel in surprise.

would venture to attack the post entrusted to him.
Unfortunately, the woodranger was not of the same opinion: each time the captain smiled and rubbed his hands at the recollection of some episode in the fight, Stronghand shook his head sadly, and frowned anxiously. This was done so frequently, that at last the worthy commandant was compelled to take notice of it.

"What's the matter with you now?" he saked him, with an air half vexed, half pleased. "You are, on my soul, the most extraordinary man I know. Nothing eatisties you; you are always in a bad temper. Hang it! I do not know how to treat you. Did we not give those sooundrels a remarkable thrashing, ch? Come, answer!"

"I allow it, "the hunter replied laconically. "Hum! It is lucky you allow so much. And yet they fought bravely, I fancy."

"Yee; and it is that which frightens me."

"I do not understand you."

"Was I not giving you important information when we were interrupted by the Cabo Hernandes?"

"That is to say, you were going to give it me."

That is to say, you were going to give it

STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PARTY

T. Ballons

DON RODOLFO'S RETURN.

The two men scated themselves on butaces, and the commandant, who was more excited than he wished to show by this startling preamble, made the hunter a sign to commence his revelations.

"About two months ago," the latter hegan, "I was at the Presidio of San Estevan, whither certain personal matters had called me. This presidio, which, as you know, is about two days' journey from here, is very important, and serves to some extent in connecting all the posts scattered along the Indian border."

The captain gave a nod of assent.
"I am," the hunter continued, "on rather intimate terms with Don Gregorio Ochova, the colonel commanding the presidio, and during my last stay at San Estevan I had opportunition for seeing him rather frequently. You know the asvageness of my cuaracter, and the species of instinctive repulsion with which anything resembling a town inspires me; hence, I need hardly say, that no sconer was my business ended than I made preparations to depart, and, according to my custom, intended to leave the presision at a very early hour. I did not like to go away without saying good-by to the colonel and shaking hands with him; so I went to his house for the purpose of taking leave. I found him in a state of extreme agitation, walking up and down, and apparently affected by a violent passion or great auxiety. On seeing me, he uttered an exclaiming—

"Oh, Stronghand! where on earth have no hear sidier." I have heen negling to my content passion or great auxiety.

"I looked at the colonel in surprise.
"'You were seeking for me, Don Gregorio? I assure you that I was close to you, and very easy to find.
"'Its eems not. But here you are—that is the main point; and I care little where you were, or what you were doing. Do you think about making any lengtheued stay at think about making any lengtheued stay at San Estevan?'

"'No, colonel,' I answered at once, 'my affairs are settled; I intend to start at an early hour te-morrow, and I have just come to say good-by, and thank you for the hospi-tality you have shown me during my stay at the presidio.'

tality you have shown me during my stay at the presidio."
""Good!" he said engerly, 'that is all for the best; but,' he added, recollecting himself, and taking my hand in a kindly way, 'do not suppose that it is my desire to see you depart that makes me speak thus."
"I am convinced of the contrary,' I remarked with a bow.
"He continued,—""You can, Stronghand, do me a great service, if you will."
"I am at your command."
"This is the matter, he said, at once entering on the business. "For some days

The two men scated themselves on butac- | intend to establish themselves permanently | intend to establish themselves permanently after expelling us.

"'The reports are serious,' I remarked, 'but nothing has as yet happened to confirm their truth."

"'That is true; but you know that there is always a certain amount of truth in every vague rumor, and it is that truth I should like to know."

"Is no nation mentioned by name among those which are to take up arms."

those which are to take up arms?

"'Yes; more particularly the Papayos—that is to say, the grand league of Apaches, Axuas, Gilenos, Comanches, Mayos, and Opatas. But the more serious thing is, slways according to the report, that the white and half-breed marauders on the border are ways according to the report, that the white and half-breed marandors on the border are leagued with them, and mean to help them in their expedition against us."

""That is really serious," I answered; 'but, pardon me for questioning you, colonel; what do you purpose doing to make head against the imminest danger that threatens you?

""That is exactly why I want you, my friend; and you would do me a real service by assisting me in this affair."

"I am ready to do anything that depends on myself to oblige you."

""I was certain of that answer, my friend. This is the matter, then. You understand that I cannot remain thus arrounded by vague rumors and terrors that have no apparent cause, but still carry trouble into families and cause perturbation in trade. During the last few weeke, especially, various serious events have given a certain consistency to these tumors. cially, various errious events have given a cortain consistency to these rumors—travel-lers have been murdered, and several valulers have been murdered, and several values able wagon trains plundered, almost at the gates of the Presidio. It is time for this state of things to cease, and for us to know definitely the truth or falsehood of the rumore; for this purpose I require a brave, devoted man, thoroughly acquainted with Indian manners and customs, who would consent...

indian manners and curtoms, who would consent—"

"I interrupted him quickly.

"I understand what you want, colonel; seek no further, for I am the man you stand in need of. To-norrow at sunrise I will start; and within two months I pledge myself to give you the most explicit information, and tell you what you may have to fear, and what truth there is in all that is being said around you."

fear, and what truth there is in all that is being said around you."

"The coionel thanked me warmly, and the next morning I set out on my tour of in-vestigation, as we nead arranged."

"Well," the captain exclaimed, who had followed this long story with ever increasing interest; "and what information have you picked up?"

"This information," the hunter answered, "Is of a nature far more serious than even picked up?"

"This laformation," the hunter answered,
"is of a mature far more serious than even public report had said. The situation is most critical, and not a moment must be lost in preparing for defence. I was going to San Estevan, where Colonel Don Gregorio must be awaiting my return with the utmost impatience, when I thought of seeing whether the Post of San Miguel, which had been so long unoccupied, had received a garrisou.
That is how chance, my dear captain, made us meet here when I thought I should see you at the Presidio."

The captain shook his head thoughtfully.
"A month ago," he said, "Don Gregorio ordered me to come here and hold my ground, though he did not inform me of the motives that compelled nim so suddenly to place San Miguel in a state of defence.
"Well; now you know the reasons."
"Yes; and I thank you for having told me. But, between ourselves, are matters no serious as you lead me to suppose?"

"A hundred times more so. I have traversed the desert in all directions; I have been present at the meetings of the chiefs—in a word, I know the most private details of the expedition that is preparing."

"View Dios! I will not let myself be exrprised—be at your case about that; but you were right in advising me to ask for help, as my garrison is too weak to resist a well-arranged assault. This morning's attack has made me reflect; so I will immediately—"

"Do not take the trouble," the hunter interrupted him; "I will act as your express."

"What! are you going to leave us at "I must, my dear captain; for I have to give Don Gregorio an account of the sala-sion be confided to me. Reflect what mor-tal anxiety he must feel at not seeing me

"That is true. In spite of the lively pleasure I should feel in keeping you by me, I am compelled to let you go. When do you start?"

"This moment."
"Already?"
"Already?"
"My horse has rested; there are still five or six hours of daylight left, and I will take advantage of them?"

spologies to them, captain. Moreover," he added with a bitter smile, "our acquaintance is not sufficiently long, I fancy, for Don Ruis and his sister to attach any great importance to my movements, so for the last time, good-by."

"I will not press you," the captain answered; "do as you please. Still, it would have perhaps been more polite to take laste."

"Nonsense," he said, ironically; "am I not a savage? Why should I employ that renot a savage: why smouth I employ that re-finement of politeness which is only custo-mary among civilized people?"
The captain contented himself with shrug-ging his shoulders as an answer, and they went out. Five minutes later the hunter was mounted, "Do not fail to report to the colonel,"

Don Marcos said, "what happened here to-day; and, above all—ask him for assistance."

"All right, captain; and do not you go to alcep."
"Carai -I shall feel no inclination. Bo

"Cards - I shall feel no inclination. Bo Bow, good-by, and good luck!"
"Good-by, and many thanks."
They exchanged a last shake of the hand, the hunter galloped out into the plain, and the captain returned to his house, muttering to himself.

to himself.
"What a strange man! Is he good or bad? Who can say?"
When the supper hour arrived, the two young people, astonished at the hunter's absence, asked after him of the coptain. When the latter told them of his departure, they felt in the stranger of the strange the latter told them of his departure, they felt grieved and hurt at his having gone without bidding them farewell; and hona Mariana capecially, was offended at such unaccountable benaviour on the part of a caballero; for which, in her desire to excuss him, she in vain sought a reason. Still they did not show their feelings, and the evening nearly any very pleasurity.

passed away very pleasantly.
At the bour for retiring, Don Ruis, more than ever eager to rejoin his father, reminded the captain of the offer of service he had made him, and asked for an essort, in order to continue his journey an the morrow; but Don Marcoc answered with a peremptory refusal, that not only would be give no escort, but he insisted on his relations remaining tomporarily ander his guard.

Don Ruiz naturally asked an explanation of his cousin; which he did not hesitate to give, by telling them of the conversation between himself and the hunter. Don Ruiz and his sister had been too near death to expose themselves again to the hazards of a long journey in the desert alone, and unable to offer any effectual defence against such persons as thought proper to attack them; still the young man, annoyed at this new delay, asked the esptain at what period they might hope to regain their liberty.

'Oh! your sectuaion will not be long," the latter replied, with a smile; "so soon as I have reactived the reinforcements i expect from San Estevan—that is to say, in seven or eight days at the most—I will pick you out an encort, and you can be off."

Don Ruiz, forced to satisfy himself with this promise, thacked him warmely; and the young people made their arrangements to pass the week in the least wearsome way possible. But life is very duit at a formier post, capecially when you are expecting a probable attack from the Indians, and, when, consequently, all the gates are kept shut, when sentrices are stationed all around, and the only annuement is to look out on the plain through the loop-holes.

The captain, justy alarmed by the news the hunter had given him, had made the best arrangements his limited resources allowed to raist any attack from the Indians, and, when, consequently, all the gates are kept shut, when sentrices are stationed all around, and the only annuement is to look out on the plain through the loop-holes.

The captain, justy alarmed by the news the hunter had given him, had made the best arrangements his limited resources allowed to raist any attack from the Indians, and received an invitation to take shelter within the post.

ceived an invitation to take shelter within the post.

The majority, recognising the gravity of this communication, hastened to pack up their furniture and most valuable articles; and driving before them their horses and cattle, hurried from all sides at once to the fort, with a precipitation which proved the profound terror the Indians inspired them with. In this way, the interior of han Miguel was soon encumbered with young men and old men, women, and children, and estile—most of whom, anable to find ledgings in the houses, were forced to bivunes in the pards; which, however, was but a trifling inconvenience to them in a country where it hardly ever rains, and where the nights are not cold enough to render sleeping in the open air unpleasant.

The captain organised this heterogeneous colony to the best of his ability. The women, children and old inten were sheltered under tonts or jacula made of branches, to protect them from the copious morning dew, while all the wear expedient of parting arms were touts or jucule made of branches, to protect them from the copious morning daw, while all the men capable of bearing arms were exercised, so as in case of attack to assist in the common defence.

But this enormous increase of population required an enormous stock of provisions; and hence the captain sent out numerous patrols for the purpose of procuring the required corn and cattle. Don Ruis took advantage of this to make excursions in the vicinity; while his sister, in the company of young girls of her own age, of whom several had entered the fort with their families, tried to forget, or rather obeat, the weariadvantage of them ""

He made a movement to leave the room.

'You have not said good-by to Don Ruiz and his sister," the captain observed.

The hunter stopped, his brows contracted, and he seemed to be reflecting.

'No," he said, ere loog, "it would make me lose precious time. You will make my appearance of the post had completely spoologies to them, captain. Moreover," he ligence, ten days after the hunter's deligence, ten days after the hunter's de-parture San Miguei had become a really formidable fortress. Large trenches had formidable fortress. Large trenches had been dug, and barricades erected; but, unfortunately, the garrison, though numerous enough to resist a sudden attack, was too weak to sustain a long siege.

One morning, at suarise, the sentries signalized a thick cloud of dust advancing towards the post with the headlong speed of a whirlwind. The alarm was immediately given; the walls were liked with soldiers; and preparations were made to resist these men, who, though invisible, were supposed to be one mics.

Suddenly, on coming within gunshot, the horsomen halted, the dust dispersed, and the garrison perceived with delight that all these men wore the Mexican uniform. A quarter of an hour later, eighty lanceroe, each carrying an infanty-man behind him, entered the fort, amid the deafening shouts of the garrison and the farmers who had sought refuge behind the walls. It was the succor requested by the captain, and sent of from San Estevan by Colonel Don Gregorio.

THE STREET WATER

E

CHAPTER VI.

A GLANCE AT THE PAST.

In Spanish America, and especially in Peru and Mexico, all the Creoles of the pure white bread pretended to be decended in a arraight line from the first Conquistadors.

straight line from the first Conquistadors. We have no need to discuss this claim, whose falsehood is visible to any man at all conversant with the sanguinary history of the numberless civil wars—a species of organized massacre—which followed the establishment of the Spaniards in these rich countries.

Still there are in Spaniah Amesica some families, very few in number it is true, which can justly boast of this glorious origin. Most of these families live on the estates consected to their anceators—they only marry among themselves, and only interfere against the grain in the political events of the day. With their eyes turned to the past, which is on full of great memories for them, they kept up the old traditions of the chivalreaus leysity of the time of Charles V., which and the properties of the properties of the chivalreaus the national honor unsulled, and them partiarched virtues of the old time which they prefer the properties of the old time which they alone of the chivalreaus the national honor unsulled, and them partiarched virtues of the old time which they alone of the chivalreaus in the chivalreaus in the chivalreaus the national honor unsulled, and show all the chivalreaus the chivalreaus the chivalreaus that the chivalreaus the chivalreaus that the chivalreaus the chivalreaus that the chivalreaus that stands like an eagle's next, on the summit of an abrupt rock, a magnificent showy man-sies, whose strong and baughty walls are urewned with Almenas, which at the time an abrupt rock, a magnificent showy massion, whose strong and haughty walls are grawned with Almenas, which at the time of the fipanish conquest were only permitted to families of the old and pure nobility, and they alone had the right to have battlements on their henses.

20000C

This ferfrees-palace—which dates from the first days of the conquest, and whose antiquity is written en its walls, which have seen so many bullets flatten, so many arrows break against them, but which time, that grand destroyer of the most solid things, is gradually exambling away by a centiauous effort, under the triple influences of the air, the sun, and rais—has sever changed matters since the day of its construction, and the chiefs of the same family, on dying, have ever left if to their descendants.

This family is one of those to which we just sew referred, whose origin dates back to the first conquerors, and whose name is Tobar de Moguer—(Meguer was added at a later date, doubtirss in memory of, the Spanish town whose the chief of the family came.)

In 1541, Den Antonie de Mendoos, viceroy of New Spain, organized the expedition to Cibola, a mysterious country, visited a few years previously by Alvare Nunes, Cabeca of Vaoa, and about which the most marvellons and extraordinary reports were spread, all the better suited to inflame the avarice and unextinguishable thirst for gold by which the Spanish adventurers were devoured.

The expedition, consisting of 300 Spaniards and 800 Indian allies, started from Compostella, the capital of New Galicia, on April 17, 1541, under the orders of Don Prancisco Vaques Coronado. The officers nominated by the viceroy were all genslemen of distinction; a meng them as standard bearer was Don Pedro de Tobar, had been majordomomajor in the reign of Jane the Mad, mother of the Emperor Charles V.

We will only say a few words about this expedition, the preparations for which were immense; and which would have doubtless furnished better results, and proved to the advantage of all, had the chief thought less of

New Spain, and more of she immense re-spensibility weighing upon him.

After innumerable fatigues, the expedition reached Cibols, which, instead of being she rich and magnificent city they expected to see, was only a wretched insignificant vil-lage, bufit on a rock, and which the Span-iards seized after an hour's fighting. Still, who is his youth and been a soider, Don Pedro de Tobar discovered the province of Tutaliaco, which centained several towns, the heures being of several stories. All these towns, or rather villages, were carried by storm by Den Pedro, and the province was subjugated in a few days.

When, twenty years after, the viceroy wishing to recompense Don Pedro's services, effered him estates, the latter, who held senors in pleasant receivesion, asked that land should be granted him in this province was no one to great him. He dismounted; but instead of threwing the bridle on his horse's neck, he held it in his hand and fastened it to a ring in the wall, anying, in a low, cancentrated voice. Wait for me, my poor Bravo; you, toe, are regarded as an accursed to the rock he magnificent Haciened, and end of the Duke of Infantado, and end of his best of the Duk of Infantado, and end of his best of the Duk of Infantado, and end of his eld comrades in arms. As Don Redrigo had sensied in Sonera, Don Pedro, in order to be mark him, hock up his shedden the cite of Cibola, which had long been destroyed and abandoned, and built on the cite of Cibola, which had long been destroyed and abandoned, and built on the cite of Cibola, which had long been destroyed and abandoned, and built on the cite of Cibola, which had long been destroyed and abandoned, and built on the cite of the rock he magnificent Hacieneda der coatsuries in the family, with the immentent of the hadicant of the matter of the hacienda.

Like all first-class haciendas in Mexico, E. Tore was rather a town than a simple habitation, according to the idea for med in Europe of private estates. It comprised all the eld territory of Cibola. On all sides its leafly walls, built on the extremity of the rock, hang over the abyas. It contained drived walls, built on the extremity of the rock, hang over the abyas. It contained from the matter of the hacienda.

The province of the haciendas in description, etore-houres, which had open the cite of the hacienda. On a control of the haci mised by the disastrous battle of Calderon, in which countless bands of fantastic In-dians were broken by the discipline of the old Spanish troops—that the most sensible men regarded it as an unimportant insurrec-tion—a fatal error which caused the ruin of the Spacish demission.

mes regarded it as an unissportant insurrection—a fatal error which caused the ruin of the Spanish domination.

But on November 25, 1811, the day on which we begin this narrative, the insurgents had not yet been conquered at Calderon; on the contrary, their first steps had been marked by successes; from all sides Indians came to range themselves beneath their banner, and their army, badly disciplined, it is true, but full of cuthusiasm, amsunted to 80,000 mes. Already master of several important towns, Hidalgo assembled all his forces with the evident design of dealing a great blow, and generalizing the insurrection, which had hitherto been confined to two provinces.

About twe in the afternoon, that is to say, the time when in those climes the heat is most eppressive, a horseman, mounted on a magnificent mustang, was following at a gallep the banks of a small stream, half dried up by the torrid heat of the scuthero and, and by whose side a few sickly cottonwood trees were withering.

The dust, reduced to impalpable atoms, formed a dense cloud round the horseman, who, plunged into sad and gloomy thought, with pale forehead and brows centracted till they touched, continued his journey without noticing the desolate supect of the country he was traversing, and the depressing calm that prevailed around him. In fact, an utter silence brooded over this desert: the birds had hidden themselves gaying under the foliage, and no other recound could be heard save the shrill, harsh desers: the birds had hidden themselves gasping under the foliage, and no other sound could be heard save the shrill, harsh cry of the grasshoppers, which occupied in countless myrisds the calcined grass that bordered the road, or rather the track, the traveller was following.

This rider appeared to be about twenty-five years of age; his features were handsume, his glance proud, and the expression of his face haughty, although marked with kindness and courtesy. He was tall and well built; his gestures, which were pleasing, though not staff, indicated a man who, through his position in the world, was accustemed to a certain deference, and to win the respect of those who surrounded him. His dress had nothing remarkable about it: is was that usually worn by wealthy Span-contend Cibols, which, instead of being the rich and magnificest city they expected to see the seed of those who surrounded this to him already."

It is dress had nothing researchable about it: a see and a writing the list of the seed of these who surrounded the head of the seed of these who analy were by wealthy spind, and several spaniards were wounded. The general himself, hurled dawn by a stone, would have been infallibly killed, had it not been for the devolen of Den Felro de Fobra and another officer, who three them to rice and withdraw from the fight.

The Spaniaras, half discouraged by the extraordisary fatigue they were forced to condure, and the continual deceptions that awaited them a tevery step, but still arged on by that spirit of advanture which never extraordisary fatigue they were forced to condure, and the continual deceptions that awaited them, resolved after the expire of Cibia to push further on and try their fortunes once again. Thus they reached, with extreone officially, the last country visited by the Cabeca de Veas, to which he had given the name of the Land of Hearts there are to Consumd, who was align from the extraordisary fatigue that had been staged and an aliely, but sold had been the command of the army in place of Don Francisco Coroundo, who was align from the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the summit of the rock and the hearts and the command of the army in place of Don the command of the army in place of Don the summit of the rock and the hearts and the part of the place of t was, however, almost immediately abandoned by the Spaniards, who carried the various elements further, and statered a new town, to which they gave the name of Senors, afterwards corrupted into Sonora, which eventually became the name of the previous. During this long expedition Don Pedro de Tobar distinguished himself on several occasions. At the head of seventeen horsemons four foot soldiers, and a Franciscan monk of the name of Fray Juan de Padellis who is his vouth had been a soldier, Don Pedro de Tobar discovered the province of Tutaliaco, which contained several towns, the houses being of several staries. All those towns, or rather villages, were carried by leave the paternal mansion, your lordship?

Alas! new the misfortune is irremediable."
A cloud of dissatisfaction flitted across the young mas's forehead.
"What has happened so terrible during my absence. Percet!"

my absence, Perote!"

"Does not your excellency know?" the servant asked in amagement.
"How should I know, my friend?" he answered, mildly. "Have you forgetten that I have been absent from the hacienda for ten years?"

for two years?"
"That is true, excellency; forgive me, I had forgotten it. Alae! since the misfortune had forgotten it. Alse! since the misfe has burst upon us, my poor head has be bad."

has burst upon us, my poor head has been so bad."

"Recover yourself, my good fellow," the young man said, kindly. "I know how much you love me. You have not forgotten," he added, with a bitter sorrow, "that your wife, poor Juana, nourished me with her milk. I know nothing; am even ignorant why my father ordered me so suddenly to some hither. The servant who handed me the letter was doubtless unable to tell anvihing, and, indeed, I should not have liked to question him."

"Alas' excellency," the old servant continued, "I am myself ignorant why you have been summosed to the hacienda; but Hernando he may know."

"Ah!" said the young man, with a nervous start, "my brother is here, then?"

"Did you not knew it?"

"Have I not already told you that I am uterly ignorant of everything connected with this house?"

"Yes, yes, excellency. Don Hernando is here and has hear here a long time.

with this house?"

"Yes, yes, excellency. Don Hernando is here, and has been here a long time. Heaven guard me from saying anything against my master's son; but perhaps it would have been better had he remained at Guadalajara, for all has greatly changed since his arrival. Take care, sir, for Don Hernando does not love you."

Take eare, sir, for Don Hernando does not love you."

"What do I care for my brother's hatred?" the young man answered, haughtily. "Am I not the elder son?"

"Yes, yes," the old servant repeated, sadly, "you are the clder son; and yet your brother commands here as master. Since his arrival, it seems as if everything belonged to him already."

The young man let his head sink on his chest, and remained for some minutes or unbed; but he soon drew himself up, with flashing eye, and gently laid his hand on the old servant's shoulder.

"Perote," he said to him, affectionately, "what is the motto of my family?"

"What do you mean, excellency," the man-servant saked, startied at the singular question his master asked him.

owe to the memory of my ancestors, but also what I owe to myself; and, without going beyond the limits of that obedience and re-spect those who gave me birth have a right to, I shall be able to defend myself against the accusations which will doubtless be ht against me brought against me."

"Heaven grant, sir, that you may succeed it dissipating the unjust suspicions so long gathering in the miads of your noble parents, and carefully kept up by the man who, during your life-time, dares to look with an eye of covetousness on your rich inheritance."

"What do I care for this inberitance?" the young man exclaimed, passionately. "I would gladly abandon it entirely to my brother, if he would cease to rob me of a more precious property, which I esteem a hundred times higher—the love of my father more prectous property, which I esteem a hundred times higher—the love of my father and my mether."

Old Perote only answered with a sigh.
"But," the young man continued, "let us not delay any longer. His lordship must be informed of my arrival; and the slight eagerness I seem to display in proceeding to him and obeying his orders will probably be interpreted to my injury by the man who has for so many years conspired my rain."

"Yes, you are right: we have delayed too long as it is; come, fellow me."

"Where are you taking me?" the young man remarked. "My father's spartments are not situated in this part of the hacienda."

"I am not leasing your excellency to them," he answared, sorrowfully.
"Where to, then?" he asked, stopping in surprise.

surprise. "To the Red Room," the old servant remarked in a low voice.
"Oh!" the young man muttered; "then my condemnation is about to be pro-

Perote only answered by a sigh; and his young master, after a moment's hecitation, made him a sign to go on; and he silently followed him, with a slow step that had something almost solemn in it.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SATURDAL EVENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, Jan. 21, 1871.

TERMS.

The terms of THE POST are the es those of that beautiful magazine, THE LADYS PRIEND—in order that the clube may be made up of the paper and magazine conjointly when so desired—and are as fol-lows:—One copy (and a large Premium Steel Bograving) $2.50; Two copies $4.00; Four popies $6.00; Five copies (and one extra) $8.00; Eight copies (and one extra) $12.00. One copy of THE POST and one of THE LADY'S PRIEND, $4.00. Every person getting up a club will seceive the Premium Engraving in addition.

Club subscribers who wish the Premium Bagraving must send one dollar extra. To those who are not subscribers we will furnish it for two dellars.

Subscribers in the British Provinces must remit twenty cents extra for poetage. Papers in a club will be sent to different post-offices if desired. Contents of Post and of Lady's Friend always entirely different.

Subscribers, in order to save themselves from loss, should, if possible, procure a Postoffice order on Philadelphia; or get a draft on Philadelphia or New York, payable to our order. If a draft cannot be had, send a check payable to our order on a National Bank; if even this is not procurable, send United States notes and register the letter. Do not send money by the Express Companies, unless you pay their charges. Always be sure to name your Post-office, County, and State.

SEWING MACHINE Premium, For 30 subscribers at $2,50 apiece—or for 20 subcribers and $60-we will send Grover & Baker's No. 23 Machine, price $55. By remitting the difference of price in cash, any higher priced Machine will be sent. Every subscriber in a Premium List, inasmuch as he pays $2.50, will get the Premium Steel Engraving. The lists may be made up con-jointly, if desired, of THE POST and the LADY'S FRIEND.

Samples of THE POST will be sent for 5 cents-of the Lady's Friend for 10 cents. Samples of both will be sent free to those desirous of getting up clubs.

Address HENRY PETERSON & CO., 319 Walnut St., Philadelphia,

BACK NUMBERS.

We have still a large supply of the back numbers which contain the whole of Leonie's Mystery, and a large amount of other interesting reading-being admirable entertainment for the long winter evenings. A great chance for new subscribers.

OUR LETTERS. Mrs. C. H. W., of Kanawha, Mich., says:-"I would rather do without my tea all the year, than without the dear old Post.'

D. C. D. of Beardstown, Ill., says: -"Your premium engraving, 'THE SISTERS,' is splendid."

C. P. E. of Brownsville, Tenn., in sending a club for a Sewing Machine, says :-

"The Paper and Magazine give entire satisfaction, and the subscribers are de-ighted with the Premium Engravings." Mr. L. P., of West Farms, N. Y., says :-

"I have taken THE Post about 40 years, and have not as yet regretted it." H. M., of Chany, N. Y., says:-

"I think you may consider me a life sub-scriber, as I think more and more of your excellent paper. W. S., of Angelica, N. Y., says:

"The year rolls around and finds me as anxious as ever for your paper. We look for THE POST as for an old friend." S. W., of Nelson, Michigan, says

"I have taken THE POST for over 20 years—and still find it a welcome visitor. My young folks could hardly get along with-

Mr. J. B. K., of Hydetown, Penn., says:-"THE POST is the best literary paper we know J. H., of Lancaster, Oho, says: --

I have taken THE Post since 1822— orly fifty years. To part with it would like parting with an old friend." nearly fifty years.

Dr. P., of Montreal, Canada, writes :-"The family would not willingly part with your paper at any price."

Mrs. S. S., of Nicholson, Pa., writes :-

"I am very much pleased with THE Mrs. M. M. S., of Centreville, West Virginia, says :-"I have been taking THE POST for er of years, and am more in far Tun Post than ever.

Mrs. M. A. E., of Washington, D. C., says: "The paper is endeared to us by old association, and it would be like parting with a member of the family to miss its old familiar face from the home circle. It is a good paper—none better. Very few as good."

J. R. H., of Fort Wayne, Ind., says :-"Permit me to say that THE POST is just what a family newspaper should be. I read it when I was a boy, and take it up at 40 with great satisfaction. Pure, considerate, independent, and liberal—long may it wave!"

N. T. M., of Newburgh, Ohio, says :-

M. E. E., of Cannon Car, Colorado, says: " I feel lost without True Pour."

S. M. J., of Lagrange, Ohio, says:-

"We quitted THE Poer about ton pur-age, and have been taking about all the of papers, and after running through the who family we think we cannot do better the like the predigal son, some home to Tr Poer."

In the U. S. Senate, on the 12th, Mr. Edmunds presented and had read the remonstrance of Mrs. General Sherman and 1,000 other ladice against female suffrage. The rementrants, including among their number the wires of Senators, Representatives and preminent men in professional life throughout the country, state their belief that their communication represents the sober convictions of a majority of the women of the country. They assert that while abrinking from public notoriety, they are too deeply and painfully impressed by the great peril which threatens their peace and happiness in the proposed changes in their civil and pelitical rights longer to remain silent. Among other proposed changes in their civil and political rights longer to remain silent. Among either objections they urge that they oppose female suffrage, because Holy Scripture inculcates for women a sphere higher than and spart from that of public life; because as women they find a full measure of duties, cares and responsibilities, and are unwilling to bear additional burdens unsuited to their physical organisation; because the extension of the suffrage would be averse to the interests of the working women of the country, and would introduce into the marriage relations a fruitful element of discord and increase the already alarming prevalence of divorce throughout the land.

POREIGN NEWS.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF PARIS.—The German batteries now fire into Paris from St. Cloud, Meudon, Chatillon, and Clamart, all on the couth-west lines of the besiaging army. The distance includes a maximum range of three miles and three-quarters. Shells from twenty-four pounders reach Neuilly, Porte Maillot, Avenue Imperatiries, Avenue Rio de Rome, the Champs de Mars, Les Invalides, and the Garden of the Luxembourg, the Observatory, and down Porte Bioetre.

London, Jan. 13.—Despatches from Paris of January 9 and 10 cenfirm the destructive effect of the enemy's guns in the neighborhood of the Luxembourg. The destruction of buildings in that neighborhood is everywhere visible. The north-west suburban part of the city is in ruins. The damage to buildings in the neighborhood of St. Jacques is great, and the general impression was that neither life or property in the vicinity was safe. A battery at Clamart is doing the Prusians good service. Shells undoubtedly reach the Place de la Concorde.

Defeat of the French —London, Jan.

corde.

DEFEAT OF THE FRENCH—LONDON, Jan.

13—2.80 A. M.—The army under General De Chansy was completely defeated, near Le Mans, by the Second Army, commanded by Frederick Charles and the Duke of Meckleaburg.

The Germans have occupied Le Mans, cap-turing large quantities of supplies and war material. The French are being pursued.

The Cause

The Cause.

When Mr. Dodge, electric physician, was lecturing through the state on the laws of health, he happened to meet, one moraing, at the broakfast-table, a witty son of Erin, of the botter class. Conversation turned on the doctor's favorite subject, as follows:—
"Perhaps you think I would be unable to convince you of the deleterious effect of tea and coffee?" "I don't know," said Erin; "but I'd like to be there when you do it." "Well." said the doctor, "if I convince you that they are injurious to your health, will you abstain from their use?" "Sure, and I will, sir." "How often do you use coffee and tea?" asked the doctor. "Morning and night, sir." "Well, do you ever experience a slight dizxiness of the brain on going to bed?" "Indeed, I do." "And a sharp pain through the temples, in and about the eyes, in the morning?" "Troth, I do, sir." "Well," said the doctor, with an air of assurance and confidence in his manner, "that is the tea and coffee." "Is it, indeed! Faith, and I always thought it was the whiskey I drauk."

White of Cornell University, have accepted their appointment as Commissioners to San Domingo. Bishop Simpson has declined, on account of his engagements. General Sigel has accepted the appointment of Secretary iron mills to stop work. Nearly 2500 men are thus thrown out of employment.

The drouth has compelled the Troy

The editor of the New Orleans Picayune has received the gift of a wasp's nest, which is 3½ feet around lengthways, and 25 feet in circumference. The skill and pa rect is circumstrance. The sail and partience displayed in its construction cause him to admit that "man, with all his bossied intellect and skill, has much te lears in architecture from the despised and puny

(B) A Western editor reports money cless, but not close enough to be reached." (B) There are more shasing parks and robably better skaters in Philadelphia than any other city.

Around Paris the rich furniture of hundreds of villas has been burned to warm the soldier. Pianos make a very cost fre.

The Nice wood shoes are manufactured by the Swedish colony in Maine. A pair costs forty cents, and two hours' time consumed in the manufacture.

Texas fever is devastating Illinois herds.

Three sheep for a dollar in Detroit.

The sheep for a dollar in the person of her sheen and not very cordial father, who at length ventured to very plainly intimate that the hour for retiring had arrived. "I think you are correct, my dear air" returned the unabashed young man. "We have been waiting to have you go to bed for over an bour." He did not wait much longer however.

"You have a very striking counte-nance," as the donkey said to the slephant when he bit him over the back with his

A QUAKER'S ADVICE TO HIS SON ON "Having taken The Post for over 20 years, if we should fail to get it we should have to give up farming sure."

"Having taken The Post for over 20 years, if we should have to give up farming sure."

"His WEDDING-DAY.—"When thee went courting, I told thee to keep thy eyes with the post is married, I tell the

NOOTH TO

Woman Fascinating Woman.

BY ANNE E. M'DOWELL,

We are continually in receipt of letters containing inquiries upon all sorts of subjects—ccientific, metaphysical and pathological. It is not our desire to ignore or to treat with contempt any respectful communication asking for any tespectful communication saking for any tespectful communication saking for any tespectful communication asking for any communication of the contempts of correspondents because of our sheer inability to do so intelligently.

The following letter, which we publish, relates to one of those strange occurrences for which we can suggest no remedy nor offer any advice; but we give it, hoping that some person who is better qualified than ourself can offer a solution to the problem which puzzles the writer, and will give a reason for an infatuation which we are familiar with, and yet which we cannot comprehend.

Our correspondent writes:—

Our correspondent writes :-

"Can you tell me anything about the un-natural and morbid affection that cometimes grows up in the hearts of young girls for women much older than themselves, and with whom they are unconnected by any tie of relationship? I have a dear young caugh-ter who has been wholly atienated from her family through the agency of a woman who, to all others besides my infutuated child, is the very reverse of prepowership.

family through the agency of a woman who, to all others besides my infatuated child, is the very reverse of preposessing.

"My daughter, blinded by her passion, (I can call it nothing less, as it has all the doubts, fears and jealousies which coaracteries; the most passionate love,) declares that, as soon as she comes of a can and is put in possession of an income which she havin her own right, she will leave home and take up her abode with this person, who, if the truth must be spoken, is very interior to her in all respects—morally, mentally and socially. What do you make of a fascination such as this? Is this morbid attachment due to the influence of measurism, or to some other occult faculty of the minustill uncomprehended and beyond the control of human reason? Or is it merely the result of physical causes, which medicine, change of some, travel, &c., will remove? Do give me your opinion and tell me if you have ever seen or heard of a case like this? I am tol i that they have become quite common recealty. In my girlhood such things. I am tol: that they have beecom: quite com-mon receasily. In my girlhood such things were unknows, and I know nothing of the proper treatment to be used in breaking up this strange enchantment. A MOTHER."

We have beard of similar cases of fascination, but we are altogether at a loss to account for them, and know nothing of the treatment saual and proper.

We were once acquainted with a womau, of high outture and strong mental characteristics, who, though of slight and delicate appearance, possessed many macculine traits of character, and who was distinguished for firmness of purpose, strength of will and great personal magnetism. This woman had the singular power of attracting and holding in thrall the hearts and minds of young girls. She commenced her caroer as a teacher in a small country towo. Among her scholars was a young girl, not particularly bright or attractive, to whose advancement in study she soon devoted herself almost exclusively. The child returned her affection with interest, and soon became atterly regardless of parents and brothers, whose pet and idol she was. From being exceedingly cheerful and sportive in her disposition, she became grave and comparatively silent, and when she was kept away from chool by any cause she grew morose and sullen. Indeed, she sremed to live only in the presence of the teacher. The parents, observing her infatuation and being jealous of the influence of this strange woman over their only daughter, withdraw her from the village school and sent her to a boarding-school at some distance away. Scarcely had they effected this removal when the teacher threw up her situation, packed up her belongings, and made off. In a few days the parents learned that their daughter, upon being left at school, had manifested symptoms of insuberdination and a desire to run away; that she had refused to attudy or to take part in any of the conversation or amusements of the ether girls, and, indeed, had declined tol eat; and it had been concluded that it would be best to send ber home, when a lady arrived and requested to set the refractory pupil. The principal wrote: "This visior has worked a marvelous change in your daughter; she is now all laughter and frolic. The lady is a teacher, and she has applied for a situation in this i defence, the poor young woman was forced to give up her situation. The former teacher rome and her leaful without charge, but also to help with the domestiy work of the house, if she could be permitted to remain. This privilego was desied her, and she resumed her position as a teacher in the tewn. She was allowed—as her character was unexceptionable, and no retional excase could be given for withholding censent—to visit her old pupil occasionally. These visits continued until the family because exasperated by noticing that their daughter (now grown into womanhood) loathed the company of all young men, and was particularly uncivil and averse to receiving the visits of one gentleman of whom they highly approved, and who they thought would be a desirable humband for her. This greatly increased them, and, being the most influential and wealthy family in the town, they brought all their influence to bear against the poor teacher, and raised such a feeling against her that she lost her position is the school, and was obliged to leave and seek a subsistence elsewhere. She came to this city, promising her girl-lover that she would soon make a home and send for her to preside over it. She worked hard for a year or two, but did not succeed in carrying out her wishes. During this time ahe wrote daily to her be-loved, endeavoring to cheer and keep her hopeful; but it was without avail. The young girl moped and refused to be com-dition of hopeless melancholy when her friend wrote to her to come and chare her home, such as it was. This, much to the chagrin of her parents, she resolved to do. They told her if she left their home, she left also her position as a daughter: that not chagrin of her parents, she resolved to do. They told her if she left their house, she left also her position as a daughter; that not one cent of their money should ever carrich so cruel and so undutiful a child. All this was without avail. She left her luxurious and beautiful abode, and they saw her leave them for a life of poverty and labor, with sterm eyes though aching hearts. She came to her friend, who was carning a bare subsistance, and who was living in a small, third-story back room. Thus united, they resolved to oling to each other "until death did them part." The elder was the provider, the younger was the housekeeper. Often suffering for the comforts of existence, they yet—so they avered—were happier than they had ever been before. They had no scolety—cared for none; had no amusements—sought for none; had no amusements—sought for none; but were to each other all in all. After a time she elder of the two, worn out by overwork and acxisty, fell ill. Poverty was at their elbow; starvation stared them in the face. Friends were informed of their condition, and came to their relief. The teacher, who, although poor, belonged to one of the best families in the state, wasquickly surrounded by friends. Brothers and austers clustered around to aid and serve her; but she had eyes and thought outly for the young girl who had it ft home and friends for h.r., and whom she must soon leave lonely and neart brokes. Suffering the most intense agony, she strove bravely to conquer all signs of pais.

when all hope of her recovery was over, she could not die with those imploring eyes boseecaing her to stay, and, in a spasm of great agony, axid: "Oh! darring, turn away your face, and let me ge!" As the young girl sank by the side of the bed, and buried her head in the pillow, the sufferer passed away from the earth, leaving one mourner wholly desolate. Tols mourner returned to her home, and her parents now hoped that, as the waird influence which had alienated her from them had been removed, she would in time become reconciled, and assume natural relations with her friends again. But they were doomed to a bitter disappointment. Eight years have passed since she was separated from the friend of her heart, and her bereavement is ever present to her mind. She sits stone in her own chamber, her eyes fixed on vacancy, for hours. She never takes part willingly in any conversation; never seas the companionship of parents or of other friends. Her sole occupations its oread and re-read the letters and memory are good. When she talks at all, her conversation is rational and intelligent. It is thought by medical men that this abnormal condition of mind will pass off, and that the will again manifest an interest in life, friends, and home; but her parents unterly despair of any such favorable change.

How to account for this strange infatuation of these women we know not. The elder of the two was one of the best and noblest of her sex. The jounger seemed to us a very ordinary girl, possessed neither of marked beauty, intelligence, nor strength of character; although, to her partial admirer, her name was a synonym for all beauty, all worth, all intelligence. "It's all a muddle;" we can't understand the feeling at all.

There is another person—a public achoulteacher of this city—who, in several cases, has succeeded in enlisting the affections of young women—not her pupils—to the great annoyance of parents and relatives. This woman is a grass widow of mature age, so unattractive in appearance that a geutleman who is acquain eventually married an excellent man, to whom she makes a good wife. We are told that this person, upon returing to this city and finding that her young friend hed taken upon herself the responsibilities of a wife, went off into strong hysterics of rage and disappointment. But she still retains her old desire for faccinating young girls, whom she anubs or pets according to her own sweet will. The unhappiness caused by this woman is something frightful, and has given much uneasiness to parents whose children come under her control.

Although we have heard from private sources a great deal about these singular friendships among women, we have not noticed that the subject has received any attention from writers for the public, or that it has become a study for physiclogists or physicians. We have told what we know about it, hoping to attract attention to it, because to us it seems to proceed from a disordered mental or physical condition; and we think that, like other disceases arising from like causes, a diagnosis should be made out, and, if possible, a specific decided upon for its cure. We sincerely hope that it may not prove what medical men call a self-limited disease for which there is no ours.—Sunday Dispatch.

thousand years in their calendar early in February, and those of the race in Ca ifernia will devote two weeks to festivity in celebration of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

The scanding of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

The scanding of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

The scanding of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

The scanding of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

The scanding of the fluid consequently commands a high price, as much as ten cents a pail boing paid for it.

The method of making a bowl of society in our different largerisms, yeter soup that can be retailed for five conts, four of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the control of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the fluid on several paid for it.

The method of making a bowl of spation of continues, and the fluid in the paid for it.

The method of making a bowl of spation of which will be profit, is as follows:—Take five Baltimore cysters, photocommands and the fluid in the control of the fluid in the fluid in the control of the fluid

THE PRAUDULENT MELEBOLDS.

How the Genuine Helmhold Protects his Cus temers and the Public against Pirates.

Dr. Henry T. Helmbold, of New York city, has been out on the war path recently, and the field of his operations has been the city of Chicago. Dr. Helmbold is widely known throughout this country in connection with the celebrated "Buchu," asid to be an efficacious remedy for many of the ills which fiesh is heir ts. The great demand for this preparation led certain unprincipled persons to get up a spurious article of the tion with the celebrated "Buoha," asid to be an efficacious remedy for many of the ills which flesh is heir ts. The great demand for this preparation led certain unprincipled persons te get up a spurious article of the kind, and to trade upon the Doctor's reputation. It appears that it months ago Dr. Helmbold learned that counterfeiters were at work, and that the market was being flooded with spurious articles bearing his name. The manufactory of the bogus article was finally found to be located at the rear of a store in Washington street, Chicago. The counterfeiter was a former specialist, and now engaged in the manufacture of spring beds. His piratical adventure was suggested to him by the names of two Germans, named Helmbold, which he found in the city directory. They were both poor, unsophisticated men, one of them being a meraboy, ignorant even of the English language. He made a written contract with them, whereby he agreed to pay them $\frac{1}{2}$ DOO per anxim for their labor in making spring-bed frames, and the additional sum of $\frac{1}{2}$ Dop examin for their labor in making spring-bed frames, and the additional sum of $\frac{1}{2}$ Department for the use of their name in the reaking of medicinal preparations. Having thus provided himself with a good name, he proceeded to issue a proparation called "Helmbold's Bacha," with wrappers and labels closely resembling those of the grantice. The real Helmbold soon heard of the fraud, and he at onese made a descent upon the enemy. This man found himself enjoined by Jurge Drummond of the United Seates Circuit Court from proceeding further in the fraud. An action was also commenced against him in the same court, in which damages were laid at $\frac{2}{2}$ 2000, while proceeding the enemy. This man found himself enjoined by Jurge Drummond of the United Seates Circuit Court from proceeding further in the fraud. An action was also commenced against him in the same court, in which beautiful for his indictment for conspire. The same court, in which lamages were la such measures as will prevent anything but the genuice article from being foisted upon purchasers.—Chicago Tribune.

You Moltke's name should be pro-nounced thus—Fon Molt ka, the final e in such a word having almost the sound of a in "fat."

The Control of gravity—A judge in court.

Hanging gardens—Jail yerds.

Mr. Peter Cooper, of the Institute of that name, deserves female gratitude for having opened in the C. I. a school for teaching young women the art of telegraphing. Thus far every girl has found employment as soon as she has graduated, and they are rapidly taking the place of men on all the lines.

are rapidly taking the place of men on all the lines.

The Dr. Lu Po Tai, a Coinese physician of San Francisco, has amassed a larger fortune than any other doctor in the city.

Missing—A large island, one of the New Hebrides group, known by the name of Aurora Island. Any information respecting it thankfully received by the owners. The less was first discovered by Captain Plock, of the barque Adolphe, bound from fquinge to London, who states that while passing the New Hebrides Island he discovered that Aurora Island had entirely disappeared, and no trace of it was to be seen on the face of the ocean where it was before situated. Aurora was a fertile island, about thirty-six miles long and five broad, and was last seen church, and received this frank response; -

"I have 'sperienced religion, an' I'se gwine to join the church, but, Miss B......, I'll thrash dat nigger furst."

The une-experienced make the best hotel servants.

It is always difficult for a doctor to keep his temper when he loves his patients.
The London Spectator, in an article on the philosophy of profane awearing, awards to Americans the pre-eminence in that accomplishment.

The Providence (E. I.) Press insinute that the Crimina are the only strikers.

atos that the Crispins are the only strikers who maintain their principles to the last. The summer and fall were unusually physicians. We have told what we know about it, hoping to attract attention to it, because to us it seems to proceed from a discordered mental or physical condition; and we think that, like other discases arising from like causes, a diagnosis should be made out, and, if possible, a specific decided upon for its cure. We sincerely hope that it may not prove what medical men call a self-limited disease for which there is so cure.—Sunday Dispatch.

Sunday Dispatch

The Chinese begin another cycle of a thousand years in their calendar early in Pabraary, and those of the race in California will devote two weeks to feativity in celebration of the passage from the old cycle to the new.

last-be's free, and now we gwin to hab a

GOOD FOR NEW JERSEY.—Gov. Randolph says in his recent message that New Jersey has no debt; but, on the centrary, messay in pecket; sends more than one-fifth of all its population to school; is more densely populated than any of the states but twe, and has increased in population during the last ten years mere rapidly than any east of Ohio; pays more taxes, in properties to population, to the General Government, and has mere wealth per capita, and greater value per acre of land, than any other state in the Union.

Compress from this state, died on the 11th, aged 62. His death was caused by heart discase, after an illness of a few hours.

237 "Los. of a China packet ship!" exclarmed a literal-minded old lady yesterday, as she laid down a newspaper. "I should

We have just enough religion to make us hate, not enough to make us love one us hate, not enough to make us love one another.

EW Whatever may be said of the degeneracy of the times, we have proof that flial devotion still exists. Said a devoted son to one who was offering condolences on the loss of his father: "Yes, he was an excellent parent, and I was greatly chaggined when he died."

when he died."

Let it is rather meleachely to read that the Bouth African "diamonos," after due eccentific examination, turn out to be "lumps of translucent quarts." The beat Lordon lapidaries will have nothing to do with these worthless crystals. The mistake which it is averred has been made is not an useonnuou one, and very large ston's are always of doubtful value. Doubtful, and this with the discount of a young miss who was cloyed with all or inary doil accomplishments. And this was ber yearning:—

"And I don't care for eyes that will open and shat."
"You did." "Well, the care is all gone. I've seen 'em enough, ma'an; I want a doil With hair that takes off and puts on!"

The Aleatians will not accept any of-fice under the Germans, and people have to be sought at a distance to fill the several

THE MARKSTO

FILE MARKETD.

FLOUR—About 14,000 bbls, at prices ranging from $4,50g8 for superfine; $50g.,75 for extra; $6,07 for North-Westers extra family; $6,000,7,00 for Oblio and indiana family; $6,000,7,00 for Oblio and indiana family; $6,00g.,8,0 for Pennsylvania extra family; and $7,50g.8,50 for bir for fancy brands. $49,50g.,8,50 for brands. $49,50g.1,50 for Mod. $1,50g.1,50 for Mod. $1,50g.1,50 for Mod. $1,50g.1,50 for Western amber; $1,50g.1,50 for Nod spring; and $1,60g.1,50 for Nod spring; and $1,50g.1,70 for Nod spring. All $1,50g.1,70 for Spring. All $1,50g.1,70 for Nod spring. All $1,50g.1,70 for sales o $6,000 bas at $50,000 bas, the latter rate for white.

PHOVISIONS—Sales of acc mores Pork at $50,001;

PHOVISIONS—Sales of acc mores Pork at $50,001;

Clear at $23, and extra prime at $16,016,00. Mess heef at $90,000,022 $\psi$ bid for city backed extra mess, Beet Hams may be quoted at $20 $\psi$ bid. Hacon-Sales of sugar-cured city smoked hams at $15,017c; Excelsion hams at $16c; sides at $18c, and shoulders at $11c. Green Meats—Sales of pickled hams at $180,85c for how. Lard—Sales of $500 bbls and tos at $185,65c for steam and kettle rendered. Butter—Sales of 61 sicerior packed at $100,300; and roll at $150,850 $\psi$ b. Eggs seel at $26,350; and roll at $150,850 $\psi$ b. Eggs seel at $26,350; and roll at $150,850 $\psi$ b. Eggs seel at $25,550; b. The seed at $150,500 $\psi$ b. The s

10% C W E for upland and 10% Glife W E for New Orleans.

BARK—No. I Quercitron *old at $50 W ton. Tanners' Bark ranges from $106,000 W con. Tanners' Bark ranges from $106,000 W cond for Chestnot and Spanish Cask.

FRUIT—Dried Apples and Peaches—Sales at $66 Tyc for Apples and $45,0000 W but in the Ireaches. Green Apples sell at $1,0000 W but. Cranbetries sell at $96,15 W but.

HAY—Frime Finnothy Hay, W 100 Es, $1,15 G, 1,80; sixed do, $166,1,0; Straw, $1,10 G, 1,0; In Straw, $1,10 G, 1,0; In Straw From sells at $250,75 W ton. South Ply sells at $25 W ton.

BEEDS—Cloversecd—2000 bushels soid at He E Timothy—Sales at $65 0,50. Flaxeced at $250

CHILADELPHIA CATTLE MARKET!

For supply 31 short Cattle during the past such amounted to about 2507 head. The price realized from highly the $8.100 Cown brought trees $6.00 to 65 $9$ head. Since 16.00 head were disposed of at from 550km $5.200 Hore and 41 from 50 km $5.000 H

No attempt has ever been made ar ever will be made, to disguise the character of Plantation Bir Tems. It contains also held and so Biters that does not contain alcohol is worth a rush. Water will neither preserve the virtues of tomic vegetables. Bor render them active in the system. This is a coemical fact which no one competent to deliver a opinion on the subject will deay. Wa'er tonice Miles long and five broad, and was last seen in latitude 15 deg. 2 min. south, and longitude 168 deg. 25 min. south. South and longitude 168 deg. 25 min. south and longitude 168 de well as with that "higher las" w leh renters it is cumbent upon ever, being gifted with reason to re sort to the best presible means of accomplishing a interesting to Ladies.

Sta Moss Faring from pure Irish Mors, for blanc mange, puddings custards, creams, &c., &c. The cheapest, healthiest, and most delicious food in the world.

hood. Fometime since I concluded to purchase a sewing machine. In making my election I was necessary for me to procure the simplest, as well as the lightest running and the caselest managed ma-chine. After testing the various machines, I was fully consinced that the Grover & Baker had all the e fully convinced that the Grover & Baker had all thee required qualities combined. I purchased one, and in a very abort time could here, fell, tuck, and do all kinds of sewing with the greatest ease. One of the many great advantages I find that the Grover & Baker has over all other machines is, you can see from the finest to the coarsest fabric without charge of tension. I cheerfully recommend it to all who desire a first-class machine. MAS RACHEL WOOD.

803 South Nonth Street, Philadelph a.

FOR MOTH PATCHES, PRECKLES AND TAN.

DIE PERRY'S MOTH AND PERCELE LO. TION. It is reliable and barmless. Sold by drug-glets everywhere. Depot, 40 Bond st., New York.

PURPLES ON THE PACE. For Fimply Eruptions, Black Heads, Flesh Wo

REMEDY. Prepared only by Dr. B. C. PERMY, Dermatologist, 40 Bond. St., New York. Sold by

Wholessie in Philadelphia by Jonesson, Holloway

MEASUR! BRAFFELL

BLOOD, INCREASE OF PLESH AND WRIGHT, CLEAR SKIN AND BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION SECURED TO ALL. RADWAY'S SANSAPARILLIAN RESOLVERT HAS MADE THE MOST

ASTONISHING CURES. SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES THE BODY UNDERGOES UNDER THE INPLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT EVERY DAY AN INCREASE IN PLESS AND WEIGHT IS SEEN AND PELT

Glandular Disease, Ulcers in the Ibroat and Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands, And other parts of the system, More Ryes, Strummer diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth.

And the worst forms of Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erystpolas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Picak, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, And all Kidney, Bladder, Frinary and

Womb Direases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropey, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Weakness and Painful Discharges, Night Sweats re within the curative range of

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease, its potent power to cure them. ONE DOLLAR A BOTTLE Principal office 87 Walden Lane, New York. Sold by Druggiets.

Some medical men insist that it is undignified to advertise a remedy, however valuable it may be Queer responing this. It is like saying that an article which the world needs should be hid in a corner -that benefits and blessings may be too widely dif-Tused—that the means of protecting and restoring health should be a close monopoly, and not accessible to all. The argument is bad. It is worse than that; it is influence. Suppose HOSTETTER'S STOMACH SITTERS—an absolute specific for dyspepsia, billouences and nervous debility—had never been known beyond the reperioirs of the family, what sould have been the consequence? Instead been aroun beyond the repersors of an recursive what would have been the consequence? Instead of curing and invigorating millions, the good effects of the preparation would have been confined to a comparative few. There is the highest authority for saying that light should not be hid under a bushel; that whatever is excellent should be placed as a city on a hill, where all men can take cognizance of it. It is upon this principle that the Bitters have been advertised and continue to be advertised in every newspaper of any prominence in the western hemisphere, and that the spontaneous testimulais in its favor have been translated into all written fanguages. Thousands cajoy perfect he ith to-day who guages. Thousands enjoy perfect in the day would be languishing on brids of sickness if the necespapers had not spread the truth with regard to this unequalised invigorant and corrective far and wide. Suppose profit has been respect from this publicity. Is that any argument against it? If the public health has been protected; if have been saved; if the feeble have been strengthened and the sick restored, great good has been accomplished; and who so mean as to grudge to exertions thus directed their fair reward?

Unnatural Redness

Of the Nosa or Facu imparts unsightliness to t'e most beautiful countenance. This annoying per-sonal effiction is positively cured by Dr. B. C. PEN-HY, Dermatologist, 49 Bond Street, New York, Send

To Cure a Cough, Cold or Sore Th BROWNS BRONCHIAL TROCHES BOY26 5m

CAN BE CURED BY LIEBUGS LIFE CURE Sample pa kage and treatise free.

Address, Dr. T. F. BURT, 737 Stath Avenue, New

MAFEYOUROWN One Found of Crampion's Imperia-tanuary bone will make twelve units of Houdsone boll bone, and the state of for H and Tyre. On all the Battrikks, 84 French Blee Row Cork.

MARRIAGES

Marriage actices must atways on secon contents by a respectable name.

At Rivecton, N. J. on the 1st instant, by the Rev. H. Hastings Weld Mr. Isaac Nawron, of Delancy, t. Sanan Arm E., daughter of Charles Hall, Esq., of Palmayrs, N. J. on the 31 instant, by the Rev. P. S. Henson, Mr. Gro. C. Passan to Miss Many A. Youne, both of this city.

On the 5d instant by the Rev. Wm. J. Passon, Mr. John Boust to Miss Emma Marinda Tation, bott of this city.
On the 4d hintent, by the Rev. T. e. S. sapers, Mr. Rossav P. Cournass to Miss Native J. Nymns.
On the 5th instant, by the Rev. J. a. Kankleman, Mr. E. Biadiamas to Lydia A. Genetan, both of this city.

this city.

On the Oth Instant, by the Rev J Y, Burk, Mr.
Jac B, Hannis to Fine A Themas, danchier of the late Benjamin Morton, Eq. (a) of this city.
On the Mit instant, by the Her, J, L. Withrow Mr.
Charline C, Saint to Miss Ballie J. Schener, both of the city.

TANKE BASE

BEATHL

Notices of Scatts man aware by security

On the 6th instant, Capt. John. Wyne, in the State eas of his age.
On the 6th instant, Thomas Wallace, in the 46th pear of his age.
On the 6th instant, Range a Hanniton, aged 96 On the 6th instant, William Simpson, in the 71st par of his age. or of the age.
On the 7th instant, Miss Etizabath Y. Warson, in the 7th instant, Jacon Mayre, Jr. in the 18th
On the 7th instant, Jacon Mayre, Jr. in the 18th On the 7th instant, Mrs. Mayrus Elliort, aged or Grubs, and Blotched Diengurations on the Face,
On the 7th Instanty Mrs. Mayrua Elliott, aged
On the 7th Instanty Mrs. Mayrua Elliott, aged 42 years
On the 5th Instant, Charles Median, aged 42
On the 5th Instant, Charles Median, aged 42
Years years. On the 9th instant, Mr. Havjants Markley, in the 75d year of his age.
On the 9th instant, Mary Sukerand, aged 11 years.
On the 9th instant, ANNE Martin, in her 7th year.

1000000

THE COMING YEAR.

We may note especially among our arrange ments for the coming year, a new story

DENE HOLLOW.

By Mrs. HENRY WOOD, author of "East Lynne," " Bossy Rane," &c.

We may add that it is always the aim Mrs. Wood, in her stories, to combine a high degree of interest with the inculcation of some moral lesson. And it is this which renders her storics such favorites with the great majority of readers.

We commenced in THE POST of Jan. 7th, a

STORY OF ADVENTURE.

By GUSTAVE AIMARD, author of "The Queen of the Savanuah," " Last of the Incas," &c.

Aimard writes a stirring story, full of theilling incidents by flood and field, of hairbreadth escapes, &c., in which both his become and his heroines take part.

In addition to these, of course, we shall give a succession of other stories, both origimai and selected, of the usual excellent quality

But the desire of THE POST is always to sombine instruction with amusement, solid intellectual meats and bread and potatoes with its pics, preserves and puddings. We aim also to give, therefore, during the coming

INSTRUCTIVE ARTICLES

en a great variety of subjects, original, and selected from all quarters. We should be sorry to have our readers say that they had perused a single number of THE POST with out being wiser in some respect than they

THREE MONTHS GRATIS.

We are still able to offer all NEW sub-

3 MONTHS FOR NOTHING,

beginning their subscriptions for 1871 with the paper of October 8th, which contains the beginning of LEONIE'S MYSTERY, by Frank Los Benedict. This is

THIRTEEN PAPERS

IN ADDITION to the regular weekly numbers for 1871, or

FIFTEEN MONTHS IN ALL!

WE HAVE A GOODLY SUPPLY OF MACK

This offer applies to all NEW subscribers, single or in clubs. See our lew Terms on the second page of this paper.

Weman's Wages.

Those who declaim so loudly about the inequality of woman's wages, do not always take into necount such facts as Mr. S. S. Packard gives the Recolution, in the follow-ou complaint on the part of It is a common complaint on the part of women that they have no chance in compe-tition with men for elerkships—as book-keepers, cashiers, etc. The only reason why this is so, if it is, is because they are not competent to do the work, and will not pre-pare themselves. A young man usually carns his clerkship by a three or four years' apprenticeship as a shop-boy, runner, and in general utility work—an apprenticeship which is tovaluable in its training qualities, and which no girl can be expected to accom-plish. There are plenty of positions, how-ever, attainable by respectable young ladies without this severe ordeal, and requiring only the preliminary education in account-antship, and yet the comparatively small aumber of young ladies who will even spend a few months to acquire this necessary impotent to do the work, and will not prefew months to acquire this necessary hnowlege is actonishing. Something more than a year age I offered to educate gratuitausly for business Afry women, of what ever age or condition, who should come well recommended, and with the purpose to use the knowledge they might acquire in a pro-per way. Before making this offer I called on a number of business men, who agreed to employ in appropriate positions any well qualified woman I might send them. This offer was published extensively throughout the country; and was favorably commented upon by editors everywhere; and yet, al-though I kept the offer open to this time, not more than fen ladies have aviled themnot more than fen ladies have aviled them-selves of the offer, and none of these have had the courage or persistence to complete a course of instruction, or to remain until qualified for a position. I know of many ex-cellent houses in this city where good fe-male accomminate would be welcomed, and is not a few would be preferred to males. But what is wanted is absolute qualification for the position and a willingness to do the dation.

TW Mrs. Disraeli, who is seventy-nine years old, is sixteen years older than her instand, yet she would be taken for a smart seventy. In early life she was a successful utilitieer, and married a Mr. Lewis, who, dying, left her twenty theusand dollars a year, which, joined to Disraeli's fortuna, makes a nice estate, and enables them to keep up comfortable establishments is both tewn and country. Their married life has been an especially happy one. The old lady is very fend of his—and the young man repays it with the most touching gallantry.

of the happiness of married people, said—
"Dat'sr'pends altogether on how dey 'joy deposites."

SO GOES THE WORLD.

Our varied days pass on and on,
Our hopes fade unfulfilled away,
And things which seem the life of life,
Are taken from us day by day;
And yet through all the busy streets
The crowd of pleasure-seekers throng,
The puppets play, the showman calls,
And gossipe that the whole day long,
And so the world goes on!

Our little dramas come to maught; Our little dramas come to baught;
Our lives may fail, our darling plan
May crumble into nothingness,
Our firmest castle fail to saud;
And yet the children sing and dance,
The money-makers laugh and shout,
The stars, unmindful, still shine bright, Unconclose that our light is out. sions that our light is out, And so the world goes on

The house grows and that once was gay: Too dear ones seek their Blessed Hom And we may watch and wait in vain .To hear their well-known footsteps come And yet the sunlight checks the floor, And makes the summer shadows long, ne resebuds at the casement bloom, The bird pours forth his cheerful song, And so the world goes on!

And God goes on, and with our woe, And God goes on, and with our wos, Weaves golden threads of joy and peace,
Guarding within Ilis heart of hearts,
Our days of pain, our days of ease—
He marks them all—the seed, the sheaves,
The dancer's smile, the mourner's tears,
And keeps them safe—His children all—Through all the eternal years,
And so, thank God, the world moves on!

War Gossip.

BY AN ENGLISH ARMY SURGEON.

Let the readers follow a regiment into action for a brief space. The day may be sombre and depressing, as at lukermann, or bright and beautiful, the sir criep and fragrant with the performe of the wiid thyme, set free by the trample of many feet—a day when every object in the kingdom of nature Such ushered in the battle of Alms. The noise of artillery is heard in the distance; the corps, previously halted, is ordered to march on. Proceeding from an enemy possibly, from his position or a cloud of smoke, as yet invisible, a round shot apcare in view, hopping lessarely along, some-what like a cricket-ball struck with a mowhat like a cricket-ball struck with a mo-derate degree of force.

Advancing further, such missiles appear in mid-air. Then an object like a loose bundle of clothes lying on the ground meets the eye, which is quickly and instinctively averted. Alas! it soon meets with many such, is quickly familiarized with them; for war speedily and surely blunts our higher emotions. Onwards we go, amidst a patter-ing very like that of a bail-shower, inter-rupted by the loud booming of artillery; and rupted by the loud booming of artillery; and then truly, if we be not intidels -even have never prayed since we left our mother's knee—we look up to the God of battles and ask Him to spare us. King David speaks of his head being covered in the day of conflict. Who that survives does not feel this to have been his case We are fairly in the meele let us suppose, and how short a period clapses when, the smoke clearing off somewhat, we find the ground thickly strewn with men! Some stot through the head or heart, it may be, lie wholly prostrate, and though bereft of consciousness, the chest upheaves, as if man's frail body still struggled to assert its vitality—its power over the grave and the flat of its Crastor. Some grievously wounded lie also wholly supine; others balf-raised on the cloow, and again some in a sitting position—maimed, probably, in the feet.

The various characteristics of the individual come out at this time. The medical officer is recognized as he advances, and urgent entreaties for help are made by some, by no means necessarily the worst cases; We are fairly in the meele let us suppose.

by no means necessarily the worst cases; while others, in deep suffering, preserve a calm demeanor, a manly fortitude and resignation worthy of a Cæsar or Sidney. The scenes—incidents—that are witnessed by him are often very touching. He had it in his power to administer, with temporal success, a prief word of aniritual addice, and his power to administer, with temporal suc-cor, a brief word of spiritual advice; and never can the writer forget the scene at In-kermann bearing on the point. At one period of the battle, lying in the trench sur-rounding a small earthwork battery, several times captured by and retaken from the snemy, was a wounded soldier. Comparaenemy, was a wounded soldier. Compara-tively slightly injured in the first instance, he had, while on the ground and helpless, been bayoneted by a Russian. This latter injury was a fatal one. He seemed to feel this to be the case, and, filled with indignation at the act, we found him loudy blas-pheming and imprecating vengeauce on his aggressor. Shocked and pained, we urged him—after doing what little lay in our power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the open field wholly precluding removal to the rear—to supplicate pardon from God during the brief interval of life that remained to lint dipped in water, the most suitable as lint dipped in water, the most suitable as well as available and expeditions dressing, is applied with a bandage over.

A wide-epread and erroceous impression prevais on the subject of excessive hemorrhage on the battle-field. It is believed to be a frequent occurrence, and that many lives are lost is consequence before surgical aid is procured. Such is by no means the case. Military surgeons of experience well know how frequently and marveilously the great arteries escape injury, the tough material of which their coats are formed rendering them less permeable by missiles than the soft tissues which surround them. There are times when a vessel is directly severed, are times when a vessel is directly severed, and of course death is then almost instantaneous. But even when an arm or leg is shot off—the arreries torn across—Nature generally steps in, and bleeding is speedily and spontaneously arrested. This is brought about by the vossels being divided in a jagged manner, not evenly, as by an amputation knife; consequently the rough edges are better adapted to help the formation of coagulated blood, which the action of the air speedily causes in a wound. In fact, the builet or round shot more or less completely effects a result which surgical science has of late discovered and utilized, for the suppression of hemorrhage during operations in civil practice. The blow causes a degree of torsion—twisting of the coats of the artery—which, combined with a natural tendency in its open mouth to contract under the influand of course death is then almost instantawhich, combined with a natural tendency in its open mouth to contract under the influence of cold air, and the mechanical obstruction preduced by congulated blood firmly adherent to the surface of the entire wound, generally prevents fatal hemorrhage. Caution is necessary in some cases lest too much brandy or ammonia be given at this time; otherwise, with increased vital powers, the "pumping" action of the heart rendered more vigorous, serious bleeding might arise, perhaps while the wounded man has no help near to him.

There is, of course, more risk of hemorr-

There is, of course, more risk of hemorr-hage from a wound inflicted by a cutting weapon, the action of which is that of a razor.

A word or two now as to another popular fallacy. Our friends the correspondents, speak, during war, of Surgeon Blank baving performed operations in the open field under a heavy fire. The thing is simply impracticable. The site for a temporary field haspital may possibly not be wholly out of the range of artillery fire—be visited by a chance unalcome quest now and then; but unless the welcome guest now and then; but unless the medical officer be utterly and unwarrantably reckless as to the preservation of his own life, and, far more, be guilty of an act of culpable folly with reference both to the wounded man and to his orderlies, he would not attent in a well as resident to the work. not attempt, in such a position, to do more than resort to one or other of the temporary measures already spoken of. We have seen such an attempt made, and the result was the accifice of one of the orderlies, a round shot having fallen into the group. It is certainly a matter of very great consequence that operations of importance should be done as speedily as possible after the iojuly has been received; but then a due degree of circumspectness must be observed. This would be wholly unattainable under the circumstances referred to. So impressed was the writer with the advantage derivable from immediate operations that at the period of the siege of Sebastopol, when casualties occurred during the night—almost without the intermission of one—be invariably operated at once, without waiting for the morning. The results were very satisfactory. Well does he remember being awoke during the small hours by the creaking of cacolets, at first in the distance, then nearer, and at length the footfall of the mule past his tent, speedily followed by "A man wounded in the trenches, sir!" Conservation—i. c., such operative prothe writer with the advantage

Conservation—i. c., such operative pro-ceedings as aim at the preservation of an injured limb in lieu of amputation—is the great surgical doctrine of the day. As yet, during the present war, the results have not been as satisfactory as could be wished or were anticipated.

been we extractory as could be wished or were anticipated.

Chloroform may well be viewed, and with all reverence, as the greatest physical bless-ing to mankind, vouchasfed by the Creator.

It not only, as is generally believed, removes that to be time case, and, and with indignation at the act, we found him loudly biasbeing and imprecating vengeance on his aggressor. Shocked and pained, we urged him—after doing what little lay in our power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the power to afford relief, the heavy fire in the would be half as many as the combatants engaged, and the medical staff quadrupled

Memory.

Saint Augustine in olden times, Stewart Mill, the Duke of Argyll, and thousands of other thinkers, both ancient and modern, have pussled themselves over the queetion, "What is memory?" without coming to any satisfactory conclusion. Memory is a phenemenon of human nature, of brute nature, and, at least, of all creatures possessing orain or nerve force. All such are endowed with what is called mind, which is probably the effect of will or purpose acting upon the brain or nerve force of the being. If a creature wills to move, its limbs are obedient to some power or impulse. If a man wills to solve a problem his brain is obedient to a power, which may be inscrutable; but that it rules the organisation and is therefore something above or extra to it, appears evident. The brain, from microscopic examination, is found to be a mass of fibre, not a mass of pulp, as was formerly believed. This mass is found to occalculation. It is found also that these fibres or strings, though thousands may lie together within the size of a hair, are all distinct, like wires in an electric cable or coil; not only so, they are tied together by distinct, like wires in an electric cable or coit; not only so, they are tied together by their ends into bundles or groups, which are again united to each other from smaller to larger groups, until the whole brain is uni-ted by ligaments, so that an impulse, a vi-bration in one cord or fibre, may be confined to it, to its group, or may be trausmitted to bratton in one cord or fibre, may be confined to it, to its group, or may be trausmitted to other groups.

It appears that all nature, with its infinite variety of effects, makes us conscious by vibratory action upon our senses, that is our nerves, by acting up in them vibration respondent to itself. Take, for instance, light, or heat, or sound. Light is transmitted by vibration to the optic nerve, beat to the skin, and sound to the ear. Now we may fairly consider that there is no deviation from this rule as regards the brain. That when the will acts upon one set of fibres, motion of a finger is the result; when upon another, motion of a leg. and so on; that when will acts upon one; the we we set ourselves to calculate, to solve a problem, some portion of the brain is acted upon—fibre after fibre, group after group, thought simple, compound, complex being the result, which action we call intellect, or mind.

To apply this to memory. When an idea mind.

To apply this to memory. When an idea has been produced either by the will or by the action of external forces, through the senses, vibration, or an impulse of some sort has taken place. Well, the time, the circumstances, pass away, and the vibrating cord sinks te rest. But may not these vibrations be reproduced? Cannot the will cause the same cords to vibrate in the same manner as at first, and thus reproduce the original services. ner as at first, and thus reproduce the original idea?

These, it may be, are the physiological phenomena of memory. Au illustration may perhaps make this more conclusive. If I sweep my hand over a harp and thus produce a melody and then cease to act upon the strings they cease to vibrate and sink to rest; but, though years may have elapsed, if I will I can again produce the same wibrations, and therefore the same melody. There is a peculiarity about remembering which deserves notice. "I will try to remember," is a common expression. When we wish, that is will to remember the past, it is sometimes necessary to use considerable concentration of will before the idea can be revived or reproduced; sometimes, notwithstanding the most intense effort, the idea cannot be recovered at the time; yet hours afterwards, when the effort has ceased, duce a melody and then cease to act upon hours afterwards, when the effort has ceathe idea suddenly reappears. May not this arise from the fact that the fibres or strings of the brain having been so long engaged in other work require time to sink to rest, like the barp-strings, before the old air can be replayed?

These ideas may possibly produce in minds having a tendency to abstract thought a new train of reasoning on an interesting night" and "good-merning," nor fail te gratefully acknowledge by some word or look every act of kindness and attention. These little words oil the harsh machinery of life wooderfully. 12th. Do not enter even your nearest relation's private room without knocking. 13th. Never slam the deers, sit in the windows, hum, whistle, or sing in the halls or passage; nor scream to persons out of windows and up stairways. 14th. Teach children to offer precedence to each other and to their superiors, to avoid awkward positions and movements, and not to indulge in disagreeable or filthy personal habits, such as yawning, ecratching the head, picking the nose, hawking, spitting on the floor, cleaning the nails in company, etc., etc. 15th. Hold the person and personal possessions of another sacred. He who observes this rule will not tickle, nor pinch, nor punch, ner poke his friend or brother; will not, unless he has special permission, open his lotters, rummage his drawers, mark his books, finger his clothes, nor use his private property. private property.

BIGHER AND NEARER.

A little higher yet—until we're lifted Above the obscuring clouds that dim our sight; our souls have through the darkness drifted

Into God's marvellous light. A little mearer-till earth's joys and sorrow Far, far beneath us in the spadows he, And we have glimpses of the bright tomorrow That waits us in the sky. A little higher yet—a little nearer, Until at last a glorious crown is won, Whilst, as we soar, sounds sweeter still, and

"Servant of God, well done!"

Step and Think,

Girls stop and think: What about? About whatever you are doing. If you are at work in the kitchen, and need some article from the pastry or cupboard, stop and think of all the articles you may need from there in the next few minutes, and make one journey do for half a dozen. And perhaps you may think of several things that can be returned to their places at the same time, thus raking a double saving of time and wasele.

you may think of several things that can be returned to their places at the same time, thus making a double saving of time and muscle.

If you are cooking, stop and think of everything you will need before you begin that batch of bread or pies, instead of being obliged to take your hands out of the dough two or three times to run down to the cellar after butter or lard, or into the pantry for sugar or nutrang. If you have a quantity of sewing, or other work to do, stop and think what will be needed first, and what you could do without in case of hindrance, instead of doing perhaps the least necessary thing first, and finding yourself at the last moment in a perfect hurly-burly to finish what you must have. And so with every thing you do, stop and think whether you are doing it in the most ounvenient and profitable manner or not.

We often hear people speak of women who "turn off work" very fast. I once asked a woman who bore such a reputation how she did it. "By thinking what I am about; by killing two birds with ose stone, and making one step do the work of half a dozen." was her reputy. Of course it would now she did it. "By thinking what I am about; by killing two birds with one stone, and making one step do the work of half a dozen," was her reply. Of course it would not be profitable to think longer about anything than it would take for you to do it, unless it was for the sake of forming the habit of thoughtfulness. But do not try to think of one thing while you are doing another, unless the work in hand be very monotonous indued.

When I was a school-girl, I thought it a great saving of time to do two things at once, and my grammar shows the marked effects of being held in my lap while I churned, or propped up behind the table while I washed dishes. But I learned that I could neither study nor work as fast, and that it paid to do one thing at a time. So keep your shought on the work you are doing. ROSETTA B. HASTINGS.

The King of Prussia.

all reverence, as the greatest physical blessing to mankind, vouchssfed by the Creator, it not only, as is generally believed, removes all suffering during the operation, but it stimulates the system, gives what may be termed "filip" to the constitution, and speeds the patient—possibly a young lad of little stamins, who would otherwise have speedly succumbed—on thefhigh road to recovery.

After a great battle the wounded are usually removed to large permanent hospitals, or, if the sea be near, to vessels, with a like ulterior object. Such necessity is unfortunate, for experience shows that in marques, (the field hospital proper,) where there is free access of sir, the percentage of recoveries is far higher than elsewhere.

In the foregoing remarks comment has been made on the inadequacy of means for rendering assistances on the field of battle. the well-bred man or woman. The expression, tone, carriage, manner, and language of years cannot be changed in a day for some special occasion. The requisites of good manners are so multitudinous, it is impossible to give them all; and each, like the snow-flakes which form the avalanche, though important, is so minute in itself that it is difficult to selectany as "most ossential." Good manners at home and elsewhere are but the outward manifestation of love and that spirit "which suffereth long and is kind; which envieth not; waunteth not itself; is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly; seeketh not its own; is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in injunity: beareth all things: believeth works or personal of the reaction of the control and the reaction of the control of the control sparage)

ORLY THE BARY.

They have only lost the baby,
The little, little one,
Who came when the April blor
Were smilling to the sun!
As frail and sweet as a flower
The wind might blow away,
It grew in the golden sunshine
While April were to May.

Then Summer brought her roses,
Her butterflies and bees,
And her birds to sing for the baby,
Uρ in the rocking trees.
"No bud is all the garden,
No birdling in the neet,
Is half so sweet," cried the mother,
As the baby on my breast."

Such hopes as hovered o'er it,
Such happy dreams as wove
Their silver-threaded fancies
Through the mother's brooding love!
Though all were dear and dearent,
Yet were their fond hearts set
On the tiny, helpless darling,
The precious household pet.

Now by the snowy ribbon
That flutters from the door,
By windows closed and curtained,
Lest the merry sun in pour,
I know that 'mid the shadows
Of a dim and darkened room They are weeping o'er the broken bud That never more may bloom,

Wee hands like crumpled rose-leaves, Restless and round and fair, Are folded fast on the little breast, As still as a saint's at prayer! And through her grief the mother Shivers with sudden pain, That the angels first shall see them Restless and round again.

Ah me! a little baby
Leaves an aching blank of space,
When God stoops down and takes it
From an earthly dwelling-place!
Speak by-and-by of heaven:
For the shadowed home to-day,
A flower, a kies, a silent tear,
And softly come away!

A Volumbia Wood.

There is a branch of the Trinity River, in Texas, called the Bois d'Arc, the bottom lands of which for about a mile on each side lands of which for about a mile on each side and for fifty miles in length are covered with a ferest of peculiar trees known as "bois d'arc," (bow-wood). From the description of the wood of this tree given in a newspaper of that country, the Kaufman Star, it seems probable that it would be an excellent substitute for teak in the Mansell Star, its seems probable that it would be an excellent substitute for teak in the Manseli car wheel, and probably valuable elsewhere in car building. This description is as follows: "We will venture the assertion that no living man ever saw the symptom of decay in the remarkable timber. The running gear of a wagon that has been in constant use over twenty years, is before us as we write this article, and yet the woo'dl works are, to all appearance, as sound as when turned out of the shop. There is an oit in the wood which fills up the pores and prevents either air or water from affecting it. No one can tell how long it will last even when exposed to the weather. A reward might be offered in vain for a decaying particle of this timber. It is not affected by the rays of the sun, and hence it never shrinks. A carriage wheel made of bois d'are will ran until the tire is worn out without having to set it. But the greatest evidence of the superior quality of this wood for wagons and carriages, may be estimated from the fact that a rough home-made bois d'are wagon is worth about double the best Northeru-made wagons."

The "Bow-wood tree," alluded to above, asys the "American Engineer," is the one popularly known as the Osage Orange; and it received its French name Bois d'are from the fact that the Indians on our western plains made bows of it. A description and illustration of the tree and its flowers and fruit, may be found in Michaux and Nuttall's "American Sylva."

oysters; so some enterprision men set themselves to work to cultivate oysters as we do potatoes—only in a different way. When the little oyster is launched into life, to take care of himself, his first care is to accure a home. His wants are very simple, requiring merely a bolding on place—for holding on is the speciality of an oyster. If he cannot at once secure a safe home, he is almost sure to be devoured by fishes, for fishes like oysters as well as men.

As soon as this fact about the joung oyster was discovered by the wise men, they conceived the idea of providing homes for the little creatures, as men prevides homefor poor children—only, as oysters don't care for cradies, and milk, their nurseries were made in this way:

Strong stakes were driven into the mudoysters; so some enterprising men set them-article which he held in his hand, and made one or two attempts to stow it away safely ones on the stakes. When the farmer wants operators, he has only to pull up a stake, and pick them off. In France there is still a different way. The farms are enclosed in stome walls, and large stones are excited among the oysters, who live on the ground. Of oourse the half opsters of these farms on the horse of France. They have even gone so the shores of France. They have even gone so the shores of France. They have even gone so far as to improve the flavor of the common option for a step and option. Interior.

article which he held in his hand, and made one or two attempts to stow it away safely their option to shore in the total peak them off. In France there is still a different way. The farms are enclosed in strained muscles.

"God help us!" exclaimed the girl, in a but of their overstrained muscles.

"God help us!" exclaimed the girl, in all despairing tone. "Oh, Royal, we must away up from the waist, and deposit whatever it was in the impromptu pocket thus. Of oourse the half opposite way. The he shortened his rein, spoke to the horse, and the latter, with a scort, took the water gallantly.

The hele looked again at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as at the little darkey, who shopped fanning, and also looked as a trausformation of the Arabian Nights.

The help valve are colosed for a set of their over it, and a multided, to land their prize. Once or twice the body shopped fanning, and also looked as a trausformation of the Arabian Nights.

The help valve are colosed only one question:

"How did get out of the Arabian Nights.

The help valve are colosed only one question:

"How did get out

A REED OF HORSES ATTACKED BY GAD-FLIE

The Gad or Bot-fly frequents the pastures during the months of July and August, and deposits its eggs chiefly on the shoulders and knose of horses. In order to do this, the female suspends herself in the air for some seconds over the place she has chosen, falls upon it, and with her abdomen best, sticks her eggs to the horse's hairs by means of a glutinous liquid with which they are provided, and which soon dries. This is repeated at very short intervals. It often happens that from four to five hundred eggs are thus deposited upon the same horse. Guided by a marvellous instinct, the female

TREASURE TROVE.

TREASURE TROVE.

"Very heavy rains in the up-country," the newspapers had been saying for some days; and, for ones, the newspapers were correct in their intelligence. There had been exceedingly beavy rains in the up-country—rains that made all the proprietors of bottom-land corn quake to their very souls—but to make the dighted to see that bow of promise span the sky, which spanned it once after a much loager deluge; and was relieved to feel that, for the prosent at least, its anxiety was at an end. The mouth was August, and the rainbow was followed by such weather as only August sometimes gives—bight as June and mellow as September. Two days of this weather reduced the little River Y—, which, during "the freshet," had looked grand, almost Mississippinn, in its turbid roll, to very much it was sail above the usual high water mark—in common parlance, still "swimming;" but it did note look so to a horseman who rode leaving down to its brink, at a place called Alston's Ford, one afternoon towards sunset. After pausing a moment to look scrutinizingly at the "water marks" on the trees that lined the banks at each side of the road, he was about to ride in, when he was satuled by a sudden address from the other side of the stream,

"Take care, sir! Don't try the ford. It is dangerous!" said a voice attong as a bid of the bride-rein, and took it is held for water marks a voice attong as a bid of the trood, he was about to ride in, when he was strated by a studen address from the other side of the stream, the mishap would probably have been confined to a thorough wetting and the is and and didensed from water side of the stream, the mishap would probably have been confined to a thorough wetting and the low force, and a voice attong as a bout to ride in, when he was streated by a largerous!" said a voice attong as a bout to ride in, when he was extrated by a bear and and deserved to the probably have been confined to a thorough wetting and the low hore so head under water sing and the low hore so head under water sing wi

The "Bow-wood tree," alluded to above, any the "American Eagineer," is the one popularly known as the Osage Orange; and it received its French name Bois d'arc from the fact that the Indians on our western plaise made bows ef it. A description and illustration of the tree and its flowers and fruit, may be found in Michaux and Nuttall's "American Sylva."

How would you like to live where you could go out and pick oysters for dinner, as you do apples? You need not smile; you could easily do it if you lived near an oyster farm. And it is about these curious farms that I want to tell you.

You must know that we eat so many places, and people began to fear that we should exhaust the supply. That would be a and calamity to those who are very fond of cysters; so some enterprising men set themselves in and out about his silken curis, and then silve oak, and the should be stood, looking across the narrow water, as we man sign and fruit, may be found in Michaux and Nuttall's "American Sylva."

"Take care, sir! Don't try the ford. It is dangerous!" said a voice strong as a man's, and the heatill, in fallings, retained his hold of the bridle-rein, and took the horse's head under water along with him. Frightened and half strangling, the him. A girl was standing on the river was nitually do the looking across the narrow water, and the silve onk, with one hand resting on the received him a live-oak, with one hand resting on the received her head. She did not reach more than the medium height of her sex, and was very slenderly fast on the red sunshine casting a live, oak, with one hand resting on the river, and was very slenderly fast on the red sunshine casting a live, oak, with one hand resting on the river, when head and laid stroubles the horse's head under water along with him. Frightened and half strangling, the him. Fri he stood, looking first up to her face, and the little creatures, as men provides home for poor children—only, as oysters don't care for cradies, and milk, their nurseries were made in this way:

Strong stakes were driven into the mudurder water, of course—and between them were woven branches of trees. That was all. Having the nurseries ready, the men now brought several boat-loads of old oysters and placed them on the ground around the stakes, to start the farm. As the young systers are hatched, they naturally attach themselves to the branches, and proceed at once to grow. Each oyster is said to lay two millions of eggs in a season.

There are other ways, of farming oysters. One way, in use in italy where a lake is devoted to the purpose, is to build a small hill of stones, and make a sert of fence around it, with stakes driven into the ground. The old cysters live on the farmer wants oysters, he has only to pell up a stake, and body sick suddenly from view—his head and the rider perched on his back alone remainding visitie. But also was reassured on perceiving that these two objects advanced steadily foward her. The horse awam beautifully. With his head turned a little upstroun, he scarcely yielded at all to the current, but kept a direct course across; while the man sat as composedly as possible in his the man as a scomposedly as possible in his lost his balance, and went head foremost into the river.

As he was a tolerable swimmer, and was now but a few yards distant from the bank of the stream, the mishap would probably have been confined to a thorough wetting and the loss of his sketch-book, (which eluded his hand and fleated off slowly down stream), had it not been that he still, in falling, retained his hold of the bridle-rein, and took the horse's head under water along with him. Frightened and half strangling, the animal struggled wildly, striking out with his feet in all directions.

One blow disabled the left shoulder of the riser, paralyzing the muscles of the arm, so was a no sign for a moment; but then there was a ruffling of the water, not twonty feet from where they stood, and part of a man's arm appeared for an instant, again disappearing. Waiting for no signal from his mintreas, the dog with a single bound was in the water, and diving fearlessly, seized some part of the drowning man's clothing. He was a vory powerful animal, but even in still water the weight of a man's body in great. Here there was a current, though fortunately, not a strong one. The dog breasted it with unflinching resolution, and dragged his burden laboredly along. But his mintreas, watching him with all her heart in her eyes, saw that he could not sustain the weight much longer. She knew that even if she commanded him to drop it, he would not do so; that the instinct for preserving if she commanded him to drop is, he would not do so; that the instinct for preserving life was stronger in that faithful breast than the instinct of obedience—just now at least. And could she give such a command? The man must certainly drown if not rescued from his present position. Her resolution was taken. "Keep up, dear fellow! I am coming!" she oried to the dog; and rushed impulsively to meet him. She had not far to go; had, in fact, scarcely lost bottom, before, groping in the turbid waters, she caught the man's figure, and zealously assisted by the dog, half swimming and half wading, she succeeded in drawing the leaden weight so the bank. It required then the wating, she succeeded in drawing the leaden weight to the bank. It required then the utmest exertion of her own strength and that of her canine assistant united, to land their prize. Once or twice the body almost alipped from the failing hold of their overtrained muscles.

"God help us!" exclaimed the girl, in a half description to me. "Oh. Royal, we must foet.

As soon as the girl could move at all, she put her finger to the man's wrist, to see if his pulse yet beat, but could not perceive that it did. Then she laid her hand on his heart, and fancied that she felt a faint throbbing. But, as she remembered, her hands were at once so obill and numb, that their sense of touch was not perhaps to be relied on. "I don't think he can be dead! We have saved him, Royal!" and she turned to the dog, who, panting and dripping. to the dog, who, panting and dripping, oroughed beside her. "Go to the house and bring somebody," she said. "Make and bring somebody," she said. "Make haste."

The dog needed no second bidding, but was off at once, while his mistress remained with the stranger whom chance had thrown thus unexpectedly upon her hands. She kneit by him quite motionless, save that every now and then she fold his pulse, or chafed one of the relaxed hands; and although the attitude was a very biring one, she did not seem restless or impations, and only smiled once when she looked up and saw that the horse, which had succeeded in gaining the bank, was standing there gazing about him, with an almost human expression of bewilderment and uncertainty. Semetime clapsed before she turned her head with an exclamation of relief. "They are coming," she said, half aloud, and bent down to listen if the heart was yet beating. When she raised her face, footsteps on the road were very as diller, and the next moment Royal bounded forward, followed by two servants.

"De Lord!" said the first one, falling back.

in Jack; "surely, ma'am, you aint been in do river?"

"I be you want anything, sir?" she asked.
"I am giad to see that you are better,"
"I want to know how I got out of the river," said the gentleman, indulging himself in a prolonged stare at her.
She smiled again.
"You were brought out by a Newfoundland dog and a young lady," she answered.
"I think you had better be content with that much information at present. How do you feel?"
"Better—except that my aboutter.

Better-except that my shoulder "The doctor says it is badly bruised. But I think you were fortunate to get off so well."

"Yes; I am sure of it," said the stranger, slowly; for he recalled very vividly the position in which he had left himself last.
"A young lady warned me not to tempt the ford," he went on. "Was she the young lady who rescued me?"
"She was the one."
"But my horse."

"She was the one."

"But my horse—"
"Is safe. He swam out and was caught by a servant."

"And where am 1? Pardon me, but you seem so kind, that I should like to know."

"You are in the house of Miss Alston, and my name is Mrs. Ryde—that is all. I think you had better be quiet now. The doctor will be here soon, and you can sak him anything else you want to know."

"But I would like—"

Mrs. Ryde laid her finger en her lips.

"Nothing more, she said; and to remove temptation out of his way, she took herself from the foot of the bed, and went off again to the window.

to the window.

The next day Royal was brought in to see his rescued prise, and quite disgraced himself by growling at the hand which patted him.

him.
"Royal, Royal, what do you mean, sir?"
cried Mrs. Ryde, while the strauger langued and shrew himself back on his laughed and threw himself back on his pillows.

"Royal is not magnanimous," he said; "but if I were once up—dogs don't fancy a man in bed, you know—I oould soon make him like me. It is to be wondered whether Miss Alston will regard me with the same disapprobation."

It was not vary long before this doubt was solved. In a few days Mr. Gerald Martin—for such he announced his name to be—was well enough to make a descent to the drawing-room, and meet the mistress of the house, the hospitality of which he had been enjoying. It was just before dinner, and Mrs. Ryde, (who was Miss Alston's companion and chaperone,) brought him in with quite a little glow of triumph.

"Here is my patient, Midred," she said; and Mildred, who was standing by the centre table, came forward with extended band, and the quiet grace of a born gentlewoman.

"I am glad to see you down at last, Mr. Martin." she said. "I hope you are well again." Partially so, at least," answered Mr.

Martin," she said. "I hope you are well again."
"Partially no, at least," answered Mr. Martin, bending over the hand with a very deferential air. "Thanks to your kind hospitality, I have recovered sufficiently to give myself the pleasure I have been eagerly desiring—that of thanking you for your intrepid efforts in my behalf."
"Since you have recovered, I am very willing to be thanked," said ahe, smiling; but in truth, my dear Royal alone deserves your acknowledgmonts. He sees intepid. He went for you into the stream—but I only ventured a little way from the bank."

"Do you think I have forgotten what the current was two feet from the bank?" he saked, with a shudder. "And a woman!—Miss Alston, you must let me be grateful to the last day of my life, that you had the corrage of a man."

She laughed slightly.
"I think that in emergencies, most wo-chased one of the relaxed hands; and although the attitude was a very tiring one, she did not seem restless or impaisent, and only smiled once when she looked up and saw that the borse, which had succeeded in gaining the bank, was standing there gazing about him, with an almost human expression of bewilderment and uncertainty. Semetime elapsed before she turned her head with an exclamation of rollef. "They are coming," she said, half aloud, and bent down to liston if the heart was yet testing. When she raised her face, footsteps on the road were very andible, and the next moment Royal bounded forward, followed by two servants.

"De Lord!" said the first one, falling back a step in surprise at the sight before him. "If it aint Miss Mildred and a dead man!" Miss Mildred smiled a little as she rose to her feet.

"I don't believe he is dead, Jack," she said. "Come and see what you think. Peyton, is that you? Did Royal tell you?"

"Yes, 'm," answered the other, who was stairing open-mouthed, first at "the dead man," and then at the dripping raimont of his young mistross. "Yes, 'm. Me and Unele Jack was workin' in the garden, and he jumped de feace, and give us no-peace tell we come."

"For massy's sake, Miss Mildred," broke think of he jumped de fence, and give us no peace that which nature had made plain. Look-tell we come."

"For massy's sake, Miss Mildred," broke think of "the angel face

"Yor massy's sake, Miss Mildred," broke in Jack; "surely, ma'am, you aint been in de river?"

"A little way," said she, shaking herself and langhing. "It is very cold, I can tell you, Jack; and that poor fellow had a terrible bath. Bring him along between you, and I will go and have things prepared."

She laid her hand on Royal's head, and the two walked away together—more like Una and her lion than ever, as they vanished from sight on the homeward way.

For a man whose last sensation had been that of being precipitated with everwheiming force into the midst of a surging stream, it was quite a pleasant contrast to wake to consciousness in a large airy chamber, where the mid-day light was toned to softness by green Venetian bliads, where the furniture was of handsome old-fashioned mahogany, where a dozen trifles of engravings, vases, books, etcetera, proved a not common degree of refisement, and where a kind-faced old lany in a white cap sat kintting near one of the windows, while a large feather fan, which he waved to and fro over the startled eyes that opeued upon him.

The stranger glanced round, and took in all the picture, recling very much the while as if he had undergone one of the magical transformations of the Arabian Nights. Then he looked again at the little darkey, who stopped fanning, and also looked at him, and propounded only one question:

The little fellow opened his mouth, but instead of answering, be only cried:

A face altogetier that was not ordinary by interest in the magic. A face altogetier that was not ordinary by and fall-ing over it, and a multitude of lines about the brow, that came ad number or discount have a strong ordinary strength to receive the and free deather fan, which he had a not of the river?"

The little fellow opened his mouth, but instead of answering, be only cried:

A face altogetier that was not ordinary by a face and strong with more than ordinary strength to return the more than ordinary strength are strong with more than ordinary strength to free that fair and fra Then he looked again at the little darkey, who stopped fanning, and also looked at him, and propounded only one question:

"flow did I get out of the river?"
The little fellow opened his mouth, but instead of answering, he only cried:

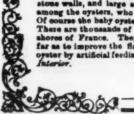

"Missis!"

was the secret—a face that varied from one extreme of expression to the other, twenty times in a minute; that hald a sort of current which was continuity fising and falling over it, and a multitude of lines about the brow, that came and went like magic.

A face altogether that was not ordinary by

MANY PRODUKERSENAMEN

- December

AND REAL PROPERTY.

tion by coming with her; but it was quite slowly and reluctantly; and he evinced his steady disapproval of the visitor, by keep-ing away from his side, and indulging in a steady disapproval of the visitor, by keeping away from his vide, and indulging in a measuing growl if their paths crossed even for a moment. Poor Royal! He had to submit to find himself and his ill busor ignored very completely; for it was not to be supposed that a young lady and young gentleman would walk along on a numeer evening with nothing better to talk of than a dog's caprice; and after a while, as it chanced, Mr. Martia began to tell his hostess who and what he was.

ced, Mr. Maria began to tell his nosees who and what he was.

"I think you ought to know," he said, "since you have been so kind. I am a gentleman—but, like Cesario, my birth is much above my fortunes, for I am as poor as Job, and I came up into you beautiful hill country on a mere sketching tour."

"You are an artist, then?"

"I dabble in paints, and make a little money at it; but I might better describe myself an artisan than an artist. I have some taleut, but no gonius; and I do the diudge wors of the profession—that is all."

"You are very young. You cannot tell yet what you may be."

"I am not so very young. I am thirty."

She could not belp looking at him in surprise; but the surprise abated somewhat after the look; for she caught a sudden ex-pression of the changing face, which showed that he told the truth. They walked along in silence for a minute, and then Martin spoke again.

Don't think I mean to obtrude my private affairs upon you but it was my duty to let you know who you have been so hos-pitably entertaining. I had very little idea what an adventure fate was preparing for me when I rode down to the Y—that

You remember, however, that I warned you not to try the ford. I am sorry to say it—but you were very willful."
"Was 1? I have always been so, I am afraid. And is this the place?"

This is it. They paused beneath the live oak where They paused—beneath the live-oak where abe had stood that evening—and Mr. Martin gared quite meditatively at the river. It was reduced to its ordinary appearance now, and seemed very peaceful as it awept smoothly by; but nevertheless he turned, after a moment, and looked wonderingly at his companion.

after a moment, and looked wonderingly at his companion.

"And you went out there to reacus a stranger who had disregarded your waining, and deserved nothing better than drowning," he said. "Miss Alston, your soul must have come down to you from the heroic days. People don't do such things over."

I thought they did them very often, Mr. "I thought they did them very often, Mr. Martin, but if you want to make me regret that I old not leave you to drown, you will pay, or attempt to pay, me another compliment on the subject. Here is a cance-if you know how to row, and don't mind getting your feet Wet, you may take me out into the stream and I will show you exactly where It yell found you." I would prefer to know where you found to the subject in the stream and I will show you exactly where It yell found you." I would prefer to know where you found to the prefer to the prefe

"You are very ungrateful, then—but I will show you that, too. After you have seen it, you will appreciate how little I deserve your praise."

They stepped into the cauce—a mere degent, and to very rickety that, much to bis dissatisfaction, Royal was bidden to remain behind—and the gentleman pulled forward very well, considering his weak condition.

The stepped into the cauce—a mere degent, and to very rickety that, much to bis dissatisfaction, Royal was bidden to remain behind—and the gentleman pulled forward very well, considering his weak condition.

The stepped into the cauce—a mere degent, and to very rickety that, much to bis dissatisfaction, Royal was bidden to remain behind—and the gentleman pulled forward very well, considering his weak condition.

The swe points of interest were shown, and after he had seen the last one, and measured with his cyc its distance from the bank, he could not forbear agging:

"How well you must aggin that I am an artist."

"You shall try at least," the said warmly:

"I was taught."

science in my childbood. I have been graceful to him many times, but never mere so than when it enabled me to assist Royal in was not one of knem, and he ubversion-her perfectly.

"Yes; you saved my life," he said, pull-ing slowly toward the shore. "I only wish it nead been a better one; but such as it is, I suppose it was worth saving; and I shall always feel to my dying day, as if it belong-at to you."

She looked up at him with a smile.

"That is not necessary. I aware you I make no claim upon it."

"But you have one, nevertheless," he persisted—"one which neither of us could igners, if we desired to do so. Worthless or valuable, we must both feel one thing—I was thrown down at your feet as treasure trans."

WOOD W

"If I spend my time drawing people, I will have no leisure to study nature," he said to Mildred one day, when he had been describing his persecutions. "It they were picturesque now, it would be a different matter! I don't mean to be ungrateful for their appreciation of my abilities; but in-deed it seems to me I never saw peeple as hideous before!"

deed it seems to me I have bideous before!"
I expect you never came in contact with quite this class before," she answered.
They are no uglier here than elsawhere, Bome of them, indeed, are picturesque even if they are ugly, and I think might be made vary affective figures on canvass. I wonder you do not try."

yeu de not try."

He made a petulant motion.
"I have no faccy for genre," he said.
"They told me long ago—the critics, I mean—that I might succeed in that line better than in any other; but I hate it!
The idea of painting an old woman at a well, or a child with a kitten, or a kitches dresser, another of the part fills me with such or a solid with a latter, or a latter developer, or anything of the sort, fills me with such disgust, that I want to throw down palette and brushes at once. It isn't that I don't know such things have been done, and well done; but simply that I was not born to de

"I thought you said painting was a trade

"I thought you said painting was a trade and not as art, with you?"
"I say a great many foolish things—but I don't quite mean you to believe them all."
"O!" She laughed softly. "I see! you have borrowed a fit of caprice from some of your fair sitters. Never mind—forget my unpalarable advice, as it does not suit you. I know very well that 'genus does what it must, and talent does what it can."
"Genius!—talent!" he repeated. "For heavon's sake, don't taunt me with my in-heaven's sake, don't taunt me with my in-capacity! You must know that there never lived a hower of wood and drawer of water with less of the divine afflatus than I have." She looked at him steadily, and a little

She looked at him steadily, and a little wistfully.

"I am very uneducated in the matter of art," she said. "I cannot tell the ment of a picture any ferther than as its beauty or its pathos affects myself; but I think you are mistaken. I think you are disheartened because your ideal is so far beyond your efforts. But do you not see for yourself how much better this is?—do you not feel what poor promise there would be for your future if it were not so?"

"I see and I feel that I am a selfish fool to bore you in this way; and that you are a

"I see and I feel that I am a selfish fool to bore you in this way; and that you are a comforter who speaks with the vote of an angel. You may be right—I should not have cared once whether you were right or wrong—but new I hope that you may be right. By the by, I am going to ask you a great favor—a favor so great that I fear you will not grant it."

"You may be ure that I will grant any."

"You may be sure that I will grant any thing reasonable.

"But this is very unreasonable—at least 1 am afraid you may think so. In one word, there is a conception of a picture which tor-ments me right and day, and I want your

"As I saw you first, on the river bank, with Royal by your side. If I can put you on my canvass as you looked to me then—if I can embody that 'calm simplicity of grace' which was a revelation to me—I will never doubt again that I am an artist."

"You shall try, at least," she said warmly; "and if you succeed—but then I have no doubt of your success. When will you begin?"

"Now—at once!" he answered eagerly.

ding, while, as "the sen want down behind the weiter hill to die," and its evening the condition of the cond parture. "Of course he is very pleasant, and I like him exceedingly, but—but are you not afraid people will begin to talk?"

"People talk about everything," said Mildred quietly. "If I stopped to consider them, I would never do anything. I would live at home like a recluse, and then they would talk about that." would talk about that."
"But this is different, dear. I don't want to vex or worry you; but a girl should be very careful how she is talked about in this way, Mildred."

way, Mildred."
"In what way?" asked Mildred, looking up haif isughingly. But then she saw the anxiety on her old friend's face, and stopped short. "You talk of worrying me," she said kindly, "but it seems to me it is I whe am worrying you. Why should you object to Mr. Martin's visite? Is he not very pisanit? And as for what headle saw you may to Mr. Martin. visits? Is he not very plea-saut? And as for what people say, you may be aure of one thing, I will never give them an opportunity to say any harm of me." "Harm!" repeated the old lady. "I'm not afraid of that. How could I be? But, Mildred, don't you know that if you go on in this way, they will say you mean to marry Mr. Martin."

Mr. Martir,"
"Well—and what if they do say so?"
"What if—." Mr. Ryde broke down, and stared at the speaker in blank astonishmen'. For the first time an actual and tan-ment. For the first time an actual and tangible apprehension flashed across her. Was the girl in earnest? Did she really mean anything half so mad as this?

"My dear," she cried, "how—how can you talk so! Of course it matters a great deal what they say, and you should consider. A girl like you, and as orphan besider, should be very careful how she gives cause for gossip. O, my dear, you don't—you can't mean that you really would marry Mr. Martin!"
She looked at Mildred with such trembling

oarry Mr. Martin!"

She looked at Mildred with such trembling agerness, that Mildred came over and hissed her. "Yos, dear Mrs. Ryde, " she said quietly,

"I mean that,"
"Now, when Mildrel said "I mean that," "Your sagacity is wonderful, Rose."
everybody who knew her knew that argument was at an end. Not that she was one of the obstinate people who shut their ears to reason as immovably fast as if they were stocks or stones; but simply that she rarely nade up her mind without weighing every side of a question, and having once made it np, rarely saw cause to change it. Mrs.
Ryde was as much shocked as a decorous old lady of three score could well have been;
but she felt at once that the resolution thus declared was planted on a rock, and she ever to see about it."

Ryde was as much shocked as a decorous old lady of three score could well have been; but she felt at once that the resolution that whe boarded as Widow Brown's, and she wasted no useless strength against it. She only folted her hands, in a sort of hopeless despair, and said:

"My dear, I am very sorry to bear it."

"Sorry to hear it!" repeated Kildred, and she knelt down to as to bring her young face on a level with the old one. "Surry to hear it."

"Sorry to hear it!" repeated Kildred, and she knelt down to as to bring her young face on a level with the old one. "Surry to hear it."

"Sorry to hear it!" repeated Kildred, and she knelt down to as to bring her young face on a level with the old one. "Surry to hear it."

"Sorry to hear it!" repeated Kildred, and she knelt down to as to bring her young face on a level with the old one. "Surry to hear it."

"Sorry to hear it!" repeated Kildred, and she knelt down to as to bring her young face on a level with the old one. "Surry to hear it."

"Sati-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen about it?"

"Sati-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen about it."

"Stat-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen about it."

"Stat-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen shout it."

"Stat-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen about it."

"Stat-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen about it."

"Stat-fied! Satisfied when I hear that you have seen shout it."

"I have found some one at last who loves me, and whom I can love with all he coldness and hardness of isolation? Sorry! O, Mrs. lidde, you were mine. Don't tell me you are sorry that I have found happiness at last."

"To be aud aim of a woman's life, Rose?"

"To be aud aim of a woman's life, Rose?"

"To be aud aim of a woman's life, Rose?"

"To be aud aim of a woman's life, Rose?"

"To be aud whom I hear that you were large with the woods. I say the said with the coldness and hardness of isolation? Sorry! I will have found happiness at last."

"To be allowed have ware to woman like den rush of those tears which come as readily to the eyes of age, as they come heavily and bunningly to those of youth. The desolate orphanhood of the girl rose before her; the isolation of heart and life which had been her portion from earliest childhood; and she could not bring herself to warn, as perhaps she should have warned.

"No, dear, I am not sorry," she said. "I am very glad, if—if you think you have chosen well. But O, Mildred, consider. You know him so little! He is—forgive me, my love—but he is se unfit for you."

"New, I should scorn myself, I should think myself unworthy of trust, if I did not give to others the same measure of faith that I ask from them."
"You believe in him, then?"

"You believe in him, then?"
"Yes, I believe in him, as I desire that he should believe in me."
After that, there was nothing more to be urged. Mrs. Ryde furled her colors at once urged. Mrs. Ryde furled her colors at once and gave up the point, only saying: "God grant you may never regret it." Two or three days laker, Miss Alston came and told her that Gerald Martin had asked her to marry him, and that she had promised to do to.

"Engaged! Engaged to an itieerant painter whom nobody knows. Who may be an—an anything decadful for aught you can tell! Mildred, I don't believe it."
Mildred smiled. They were walking up and down the flower garden—ahe and the young lady who had made this energetic speech—and the vahemence of the other did not change by a shade the calmness of hor manner.

speech—and the vahemence of the other did not change by a shede the calmness of hor manner.

"Don't you, Rose?" she said. "I am sorry for that, since it is true."

"You are engaged to him?"

"But, good heavens! don't you mean to consider the family, and papa, and me—and—and everybody? I really think it is terrible to disgrace us all like this!"

"Digrace you! "A swift wave of color came over Mitorea's face, and then died down agaio. "Digrace you, Rose. You surely forget of whom you are speaking. Mr. Martin is a gentleman."

"A gentleman!" and pretty Rose Alston gave her head a to-s that nearly sent its topmost knot of curls into a lifac bush near by. "And pray how can you know that, my dear? No doubt he teels you so; but bless me! wouldn't he tell you so any way? For my part, I have no doubt whatever but that he is a cherolier d'industris. He heard you were a great beiroes, and an orphan, and your own mistress and all that, and came ous here on purpose to marry you—that is it."

"Your sagecity is wonderful, Rose."

"I am sorry I can't return the compliment. But I assure you sverybody says the same thing. I heard a rumor of it down at Mrs. Fay's; and as soon as I came home yesterday, papa took me saide and told me how uneasy he was about yen, because he heard that you received constant visits from some man—a swindling fellow, he called him —whom you had fished out of the river, this was a revelation to me.—I will never into the new how, and if you nucees. When will you do gain that I am an artist."

"You shall try, a least," she said warmly included a single state of your chance, Midded, consider. You have a light your chance, Midded, consider. You have the present but a gain that I am a market."

"How washe was drowned—but then I have not your chance, Midded along the hands here in this case, and it was a state of the country propie round to the present but and you may be an artist."

"Now makes was drowned—but then I have not your chance, Midded along the hands here in this case, and the hands here is a state of the washed. "You must not any that for you." "Any you not a great helress, and in her present but the award to washed." Now—at more it has you have the large in a winning and my father cannel Royal in the washed. "You must not any that he washed this modes of the country propie round the washed that the country propie round the proper to washed the said of rotal." "Any you not a great helress, and in her proper but the said your merit to large the washed that the wording the words. The man whom has addressed had faults comply but range of the cyrical and the here." What he may not title. "But you have to the present but we want to warry it was a sea on one of them, and it washed that the word the word. The man whom has addressed had faults comply but range of the cyrical about the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has not been partially and the present but was not one or it has no who had the present but was not one or it has no who had the present but was not one or it pose." I already congratulate myself," said Mr.

Martin. "It is seldom that one has such a fair cause for gratitude."
"In the matter of consinship, do you

'Yes: or in the matter of anything else." "Yes; or in the matter of anything else."
"Thank you," said she, with a langh, and looked up at him, fully conscient that she had never appeared to greater advantage than as ste stood there, bathed in the September sunlight, and relieved by a background of the royal dep-touch flowers whose name she bore, and to whom she looked akin in the freshness of her grace and beauty.

ground of the royal deep-toued Howers whose same she bore, and to whom she looked akin in the freshness of her grace and beauty.

For, as far as flesh-and-blood prettiness goes, it would be hard to flod a prettier girl than Rose Alston was. It was not the beauty that wears, and still less was it the beauty that grows and deepens with time; but it was a beauty which the world at large appreciates more readily than almost any other; and it was very perfect of its kind. It lay on the surface, for everybedy to see—that was a great thing gained.

There were no shades of expression to be dived after; no classical features to be criticised; no mooted or disputed points about her. Everybody conceved that her features were indifferent, and their expression not worth considering; but everybody was also obliged to saknowledge that her complexion was exquisite; that her ryes were the largest, thue brightest, and the brownest that ever laughed in mi-colef, or softened in sentiment; that her mouth was the most lovely bit of human sculpture imaginable; and that her rich, brown curls, which she were piled fantastically all over her bead, and the majority of which were her own, might have been painted for the chevelure of Venus. It was only the bewildering freshness of tint, and softness of outline, which belonged to her; but there are few things more secure of admiration during its short life, than this, and every advantage of toilet and grace of manner, had been trought to aid its so well, that although there were undoubtedly many prettier girls in the country-side, there was not one half so much admired as Rose Alston. She knew this very well, none better, not one half so much admired as Rose Al-ston. She knew this very well, none better, and as she looked up at Gerald Martin, and asw the quickening light in his eyes, she understood at once what it means, and thought, with an inward laugh, that she might as well, pour passer le temps, amuse herself with him.

rself with him.
"Mildred has gone in the house," she id, changing the subject abruptly. "You

"Because 'am better employed, for one

"Because 'am better employed, for one series, that is how the matter stands," leturned Rose. "I'm no prettier than a dozen other girls in the county; but if I had had you nove taken of the country people sometimes; for I nave heard rumers of the wonderful likenesses you have taken of the country people round here."

She broke off with a sigh. Like Mrs. "Prey don't credit all you may hear; it is

DO TO THE

60 CO CO

"What did he say? I don't remember."
"That he could never copy a conception—for if he did, all the spirit and fire remained in the sketch, and the picture was inevitably tame and weak. Now, that riverside portrait."
"What is the river-side portrait?" intervival Rose, who cared as much for Joseph

"What is the river-side portrait?" inter-rupted Rose, who cared as much for Joseph Vernet and his eketches as for the efforts of some artist in the moon. "I thought Mr. Martin said he never painted portraits?" "I had good right te say so," replied Mr. Martin, "since the only one I ever tried to paint has preved an utter failure." "A portrait of Mildred?" "Yea."

"Yea."

"Dear me, how singular! I should have thoughs you could have painted Mildred, of course. I wonder if yeu would fail if you tried to paint me."

"I will try, if you have no objection."

"Objection! I should be delighted. But then, perhaps, you might succeed, and Mildred would not like that."

dred would not like that."

Martin looked at Mildred, and met a smile which was very reasouring.

"Mildred would know why I succeeded, if I did succeed Miss Alston," he said. "It would simply be because it is much more easy to deal with form than with expression."

He turned as he spoke, and went back for his flabing-rod; while Miss Alston—who was net Miss Alston, by-the-by, but only Miss Rose Alston—looked at her cousin with a

"He is not too civil, my dear," she said;
"but still there is something about him that I rather like."

(CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.)

(CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.)

A gentleman, playing cards at Baden-Baden, was much annoyed by an inquisitive stranger, who stood beside him and pried into his band. At last he took a pinch of sauff and administered it to his tormentor, immediately saying, "I beg your pardon, but you were so near me, sir, that I mistook your none for mine."

The first locomotive engine introduced and worked in America, was run upon the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, in the year 1828. It was called the "Stourbridge Lion," and was built in England, of the best workmanship and material, and most approved pattern of that date. This locomotive is now lying outside of a foundry at Carbondale, Luzerne county. It ought to be preserved somewhere as an interesting relic of the early days of railroading.

Beveral live lizards have been found imbedded in petrified fir trees, which were found in a forest near Calistoga, California. One is now on exhibition at San Francisco. They are unlike any species known.

At Council Bluffs the conductors get the names of all passengers to California, which are telegraphed to the Pacific coass and published several days before the people arrive.

A Portland man sues a barber for $10,000 damages for cutting off his moustaches.

tache.

A certain New York editor is in quest of special attractions for his paper. He says:
"What we want for this column is personalities as mean as possible. Expense of libul suits to be defrayed by the writer; funeral expenses by us."

Expenses by us."

Liff Captain Eyre, who commanded the Eoglish steamer Bombay ar the time she sank the Oneira in the bay of Yokohama, has been discharged from the service of the Peninsula and Oriental Steamship Company.

The house in which Henry Clay was born, near Ashland, Hanover county, Vs., was burned recently. It was built over a hundred years since.

The Paul Morphy, the noted choss player, the particular in New Orleans. He now practising law to New Orients, He is now practising law to New Orients. He never now plays chess.

The reason why formers are so longived is, that every year tilly renew the bayday of their youth.

The reason why formers are so longived is, that every year tilly renew the bayday of their youth.

The reason why formers are so longived is, that every year tilly renew the bayday of their youth.

The relation will work its way through, as the poet remarked, when he way a hole in the elbow of his coat.

The Richard Grant White pays, the absurd use of the two words Help Meet, as if they together were the same of one thing—a wife—is too common. The week, the absurd use of the two words Help Meet, as if they together were the same of one thing—a wife—is too common. The week together were the same of one thing—a wife—is too common. The week together were the same of the two desired in America. Address, J. N. RIGII-ARDSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

GENTS We desire to leave one of our want of the contains more reading and libustration for the price than asy copyright book, equal in other results word as help meet for him?—i. e., a help fit for him. There is no such word as help meet. The word E-south is also wrongly used by most people. When a murderer is hanged, his sentence is xecuted, the man is not. A man cannot be executed—that is, followed out or people. When the content is the chesses of the chesses of the content is the chesses of the content is not an order to the stance. The chesses in the chesses and the chesses are so long-the and the content is not an order to be a such as a conce. Grouge Ringson and the price of ground in other results and the content is the content in the chesses and the chesses are the content in the chesses of the chesses and the chesses are so long-the and the content in the chesses are so long-the and the content in the chesses and the chesses are so long-the and the content in the chesses are so long-the and the content in the chesses and the chesses are so long-the and the chesses are so long-the chesses and the chesses ar ormed.

Bismarck's note to England spologzing for the seizure of English vessels in the Seine, is publised. He offers full repara-

Mr. Tennyson, amid his other various eccupations, is understood to be contem-plating a short opithalamium in honor of the marriage of the Marquis of Lorne with the Princes Louise.

137 The estate left by Stephen Girard for the maintenance of Girard College consists of stocks worth $630,000, and 187 stores and dwellings in Phitadelphia. Besides these, there are 18,000 acres of land in Schuykill and Columbia counties, valuable for coal, farming, and timber purposes. It absorbs nearly the entire income to pay salaries of professors, to beard, clethe, and educate the orphans, and keep the astate in repair.

137 I hav notimed one thing, that the most virtewous and diskreet folks we hav among us are those who hav either no pashuns at all, or very tame ones—it is a grate deal easier test be a good dove than a decent surpest.

marpest.

(27 In a late number of the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter, Dr. Scheitler, of Estimore, relates the case of a lady, twenty-eight years old, who had consumed, in two years, 5,840 ounces of laudanum!

30000

aight at the mement, she rushed off to meet her.

"Look, Middred, took!" she cried. "Mr. Martin has taken the best likeness of me that ever was taken of me is my life—and all in a second. Did you ever see anything better? Isn't it like? Isn't it me?"

"It is very like you," said Middred, looking from the book to the face that bent over it. "Mr. Martin has succeeded admirably. But then he always does succeed—in the aketch. If he only did as well otherwise—"

"What do you mean? What does are mean?" asked Rose, looking at Martin.

"She means that I fall in elaborating the aketch into a picture," he answered, coming up to them. "She is perfectly right, too—I me seed to have weed! here I look at law who delivers the bread, flour, due, to the catemark to have weed! when I look at

But then he always does succeed—in the sketch. If he only did as well otherwise—"
"What do you mean? What does she mean?" asked Rose, looking at Martin.
"She means that I fall in elaborating the sketch into a picture." he answered, coming up to them. "She is perfectly right, too—I am ready to hang myself when I look at at that river-aide portrait."
"Ne; don't hang yourself, "said Mildred." It will come out at last, I am sure. But your sketches are always the best; and remind me of what Joseph Vernet said of his own."
"What did he say? I don't remember."
"That he could never copy a conception—for if he did, all the spirit and fire remained in the sketch, and the picture was iseritably tame and weak. Now, that riverside portrait.""
"What is the river-side portrait;" inter"What is the river-side portrait;" inter"What is the river-side portrait;" inter"What is the river-side portrait;" inter-started on a run in different directions, and one has sent from Alaska for his winter clothes, and the other has written to his wife from the city of Mexico, asking her to send his linen ouet and palm-leaf hat.

By One of the most ingenious advertisements we have seen is the following:
Ico, ice, ice.
If you want what is pure and m
At a reasceable pr
Follow no new day
But send to me in a tr
For I have the largest and best stock ever put up in this city. put up in this city.

reaces of Advertising. thirty cents a line for the Aret meersion. fwenty cents for each additional lineral Payment in required in advance

AGENTS WANTED.

Agents are wanted to obtain subscribers for this paper—the Satuadat Evenine Poet. Good Commissions allowed. Address H. Peterson & Co., 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

GRIMLEY'S PRAIRIE WATER.

Unrivaled as a toilet requisite, it possesses a deliency of fragrance comparable to that of the imported.
Its merits as a durable perfume for the handkerchier makes it far preferable to the numberless cheap extracts so much in vogue.

Price One Dollar per Bottle, flold by Druggista generally.

WANTED AGENTS FOR GREAT FORTUNES.

And How They Were Made; Or, The Struggles and Triumphs of our Self-Made Men.

BY J. D. McCABE, JR.

Profusely Illustrated and Beautifully Bound. The most taking, instructive, and universally sought after book issued for years. Fascinating as fiction, anthentic as histors, practical as "Post Biotection, and the profundation of the

GEO. MACLEAN, PUBLISHER. 719 Sansom St., Philadelphia VENTRILOQUATE'S 64 USB &... The only reliable work ever published. It is any and tells the whole secret. The art can be learned by any one in a few days. This work is by an old ventriloquist, was, after 40 years experience "tells just how "tis done." How to imitate all snimals, birds and beasts, beer, frag. &.e., ... a wonderful book—the largest on the subject. Price only 25 cents. Sent prepadd anywhere by HUNTER & CO., Publishere, Himsdale, N. H.

CURLAS CURLAS -One application of my hair Carlor will curl the straightest hair into beautirefunded. Sent by mail, post-paid, for 50 cents psckage, or three for $1. or $1.

J. P. JAGGERS,

Box 2743 St. Louis, Mo.

$5 TO SIOPER DAY. MRN. WOMEN, who engage in our new business make from $5 to 10 per day in their own local little. Full particulars and instructions sent free by mail. Those in need of pernament, profitable work, should address at once. GRONGE STINSON & Co., Portland, Malne, an x1.128

$150 A MONTH: RMPLOYMENT: EX-TMA INDUCEMENTS!

A premium HORSE and WAGON for Agents We desire to employ agents for a term of seven years, to sell the Buckeys $30.08 "huttle sewing Machines. It makes a stitch alike on both sides, and is the best low priced licened machine in the world. W. A. HENDEMON & CO., Cleveland, Obio, or St. Louis, Missouri.

A GENTS WANTED! Big wages and light work. No Humbug. Something everybody wants. Send 10 cts. for sample, terms, &c., to L. AUSTIN, Elsie, Mich.

Bleetie Medical College of Pennsylvania.

3 RECEIPTS for $5 cents and stamp. Address jan31-4

THE YOUTH'S MAGAZINE is now in its second year. Enlarged and improved. Full of choice reading every month for young and old. Every boy and girl should read it. Only $1.00 per year. Best and cheapest of the class.

B. L. CUTHBERT. Entres. jan21-steow Pittsburg. Pa.

DEVOLVERS AT CONT.-Hall's Six R Shooter, a neat, durable weapon, four lach bar-rel. Sent, post paid, for $1.50.
A. GEORGE Box So.
jani4-2t

BUCHU.

[From Dispensatory of the United States ]

Dioama Crenata-Buchu Leaves.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchn leave are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Discase of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Inconcerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheums tism, Cutaneous Affections, and Dropsy.

HALMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUGBU Is used by person from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 25 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement, or

In affections peculiar to females, the Extract Bu ha is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of the Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Laucorrhos, or

DISSASES OF THE BLADDES, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS. - This medicine in sorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions, and all Unnatural En largements are reduced, as well as Pain and Inflam-

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Deposit, and Mucus or Milky Discharges, and for attended with the following symptoms; Indisposi tion to Exertion. Loss of Power, Loss of Memory Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Pody, Dryners of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance. Universal Lassitude of the Muscula

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diurctic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, &c., in these diseases, sed in connection with HELMBOLD's BOOK WASH.

Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere. Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other. Pason-$1.25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symp.

Address

H. T. HELMBOLD,

594 Broadway, New York.

NONE ARE GENUINE UNLESS DONE UP IN steel-engraved wrapper, with fic simils of my Che-

H. T. HELMBOLD.

PALMER CONTENTS. BEST IN USE PRINCIPAL BETTICE PHILADELPHIA. OH, H. FRANK PALMER, Pres A.A.Lino

A new investions stand appropria as the "best" by the most confirms to demand and flarging in desiration of the world, the inventor having been homored with the award of FIFT GOLD AND SILVER HERALS (or "Free Frient" language the GREAT HERALS (or the WORLD" EXHIBITION IN LONDON AND FIRW TORK; also the most lincovery Empact of the great BOCIETT OF SURGROUN OF PARIS, styring his Functs piece shortthe ENGLISH and FRIENCE.

Du. PALMER yives percent; sincustion so the busimost of his preference, the by mon of the best unalifications and greatest experience. He is specialroom of the preference, the coverage of the unalifications and greatest experience. He is specialness of his preference, the coverage of the analytications and greatest experience. He is specialaction of the preference of the prominent OFFICENTS of the ARM and RAVY. SIX MAJOR-GENERALS and more than a thousand less distinguished officers and outliers have over the PALMER LIMBS on cellva duty, while still greater numbers of runsent civilians very, by their sid, fixing impoints constraints.

At Constraint "PALMER", THERE" ages the

All Contine "PALMED TIMES" NOTE Promphists, which contain too New States ampulations, and full information for persons count of Sembs, next from in applicants, by tagil thereins.

The well-known LINCOLN ARM is also made solely by this Company. This Arm has the patronage of the U. S. GOVERNMENT. To avoid the imposition of PIRATICAL COPY-INTS, apply only to De. PALMER, se shore directed.

T ET EVERYBODY KNOW IT:

THAT THERE IS NOW IN PROGRESS

WANAMAKER & BROWN'S OAK HALL,

MOST STUPENDOUS SALE FINE READY-MADE

CLOTHING THOUSANDS OF OVERCOATS,

AND TENS OF THOUSANDS OF OTHER GARMENTS FOR

BOTH MEN AND BOYS, ARE BEING SOLD AT A Positive Sacrifice!

THE GREATEST BARGAINS WE HAVE EVER OFFERED ARE NOW BEING TAKEN UP. A WHOLE SUIT FOR WHAT THE COAT ALONE COSTS ORDINARILY. AN OVERCOAT AND SUIT FOR WHAT THE BUIT ALONE WOULD COST. TWO BOYS' SUITS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE IN REGULAR TIMES. FURNISHING GOODS AT A DISCOUNT BELOW THE LOWEST PRICES. THIS WORK MUST GO ON

Our Stock is Reduced, AND WE ARE IN GOOD SHAPE TO BEGIN OUR SPRING PURCHASES AND MANUFACTURES.

MAKE YOUR SELECTIONS,

AND THE PRICES WILL BE FIXED TO YOUR OWN SATISFACTION

Wanamaker

AND

Brown's.

Market and Sixth Sts., Phila.

By our system of Soft-Measurement, easily understood, we canalic customers to send their orders in such a way as to SECHER AS GOOD FIT as though they came themselves to our Establishment.
Our Improved Hules for Seff-Measurement, Samples, and Prices sent when requested, and PROMPT ATTENTION given to all orders, with GUARAN-decit-2m

The Celebrated Murray Lanman's Florida Water.

The most lasting, agreeable, and refreshing of all perfumes, for use on the Handkerchief, at the Toilet, and in the Bath. For sale by all Druggists and Perfumers.

10 GALLANN OF WHINK FY FOR $1. instructions 25 cents. Address RIRD, Port De-dect7-12t Ready, Jan. 1st, 1871.

"100 CHOICE SELECTIONS, NO. 3."

This book, like the two preceding numbers, is full of good things for recitations, declamatique, school resaling, &c.—m. poetry and prove. A perfect store-bouse of thrilling ordery, tender pathoe, and sparkling humor. All who have Nos. 1 and 2 want this, and those who have not, want ats. Price for either number, in paper, 30 cents, cloth, 75 cents, mailed free. Ask your bookseller for them, or rend price to P. GARRETT & CO., Publishers, jant-3: 7092 (bestud St., Publishers, Also, "EXCELSION DIALOGUES," price $1.75.

YOUNG GENTS ATTENTION: If you want a fine Mountiche or set of Whiskers, slick, and where 6 bottles are ordered sent use Prof. Mayo's Magic Compound—use package of which is warranted to produce them in 21 days, in werey case, or money refunded. Price 25 centra package, post-paid; three for 50 cents. Address apackage, post-paid; three for 50 cents. E. HOLBROOK, Uxbridge, Mass.

APCEMEN JAMES. (TEX., (1990) por dany) to stall the coloursand HOMES BILLTILE REW.. ING HACHINE, Has the under Joed, makes the "lock astends" dalline at touch sides, and is fully inconces. The hest and cheapest family beauting Machine in the market. Address JOHNSON, ULARK & CO., Boston, Hann., Pittaburg., Fa., Chicago. 11.

$250 m mouth, with stepell and Key Check Dies. Don't fall to secure afroiler and samples, free. Address S. M. Spunner, Brottleboro, AGENTS make $76 a day soliting our goods. So, of sight. Sample but 12 Patent Rowelly Pountain Pens for 30 cents. Writes four pages with one sign 500 per cent. profit. One Patent Per-Holer and Ersser for 30 cents. One Patent Novely Funknik and Pencil Sharpuner combined 50 cents, or 40 cents, other post-paid, for 50 cents with terms, de. Address (187 Novelsy Co., 604 Library 8t., Philadelphia, Pa., deci? Sine

OFNER WARTED (8288 a Month) by the AMERICAN ENTERING MACHINE Boston, Mass., or fit. Louis, Mo. septi-dm

VINEGAR. clder, Wine, Molasses, or Borghum in 10 hours, without using drags. For chalars, address F. I. WAGER, Vineager Maker, Oreased. Cons.

50 PROTOERSH, "Valuable Recipes," and Secrets Worth Knowing" sent free. Address Box 74, "Station A," New York city. docs-in.

CLEAN POSTAGE AND BEVENUE STAMPS takes in exchange for Goons. Address B. FOX & CO., New York city.

895 A WEEK SALARY And 10 per cent. commission paid to first-class, active, pucking conversing agents. For particulars address R. THORNTON, Hoboken, New Jersey. novi6-2m

I NOTANTAN BOOL IN HELL IN To mad Sommed. Refreshing Stoop guaranteed to any one afflicted with Ashma by uning my "Insigns Relief for Asthman." If acts instantly and completely, retieving the paramyon immediately, and anability the patient to its dearn and steep. I cuffered from this disease twelve years, but now taffer no longer, and work and cloop as well as any one. Warrouded to relieve in every case. Southly mail to any address on receipt of price, El per box, and it contains on posterior. CHAS.

B. HURET, Mochoster, Henry country, Pa. death is

FREE TO BOOK AGENTS.

$1.000 REWARD.

For any case of Blind, Bleeding, Itching or Ulcerated Piles that De Bling's File Memody fails to cure. It is prepared expressly to cure the Piles and nothing cles, 450 has cured cases of over 20 years standing. Bold by all Druggiets. Price $1.00.

LABORATORY—1 $2 Franklin 84. Baltimore, Md. decil-19.

8240 PER MONTH Eastly made by agents. Foreirculars, address FARR, ROBINSON & CO., Jackson, Michigan. deci7-138

I OW TO BESSAVE.—"A Handbook of Eth. quette, and Guide to True Politences," 15c.; "The Model Letter-Writer." 15c.; "How to Talk and Debate," 15c.; "The Art of Ventricquism, with instructions for Making the Magic Wilvite," 15c.; "Courtship and Mariage," 15c. Mailed. Address E. TERORITON, Hoboken, New Jersey. angule-owly.

R. DOLLARD, 513 CHESTNUT ST., PHILADELPHIA,

PREMIER ARTISTS

HAIR. Investor of the celebrated GOSSAMEN VENTL LATING WIG and KLASTIC BAND TOUPACES measure their own heads with accuracy.

For Wigs, Incress.

No. 1—The round the head.

S. — From fore-send ower the head to neck.

R. — From ear to ear over the top.

4. — From ear to ear round the forchead.

He has always ready is a sprendid stock of Gents' Wigs, Tonpees, s' Wigs, Haif Wigs. Frizots, Braids, Curis, &c., beautifully manutactured, and as cheap as any cotablishment in the Union. Letters from any part of the world will receive attention. Private rooms for Dycing Ladies' and Gentlemen's

RUPTURE

Curred by Dr. She'man's Patent Appliance and Imptue: Curalive, without the injury experienced from the use of trusses. Pamphlets illustrating bad coses of Hupture, before and after cure, with other information of interest to the ruptured, muitod on receipt of ten ets. Address Dr. J. A. SHEMAN, dcc10 cowst. 697 Broadway, New York.

THE NERVE HARMONIZER Cures Neuralgia and all Pain ALMOST INSTANTLY.

The NEWER HARMONIZER to an external cure, and can be applied anywhere as it contains no poisonous, irritating, or dangerous ingredient. It is the discovery of a regular physican of many

It is the discovery of a regular physican of many years practice and removes

PAIN, SORENESS, INFLAMMATION, cures HEADACHE, SORE THROAT, NEURALGIA, RHEUMATISM, PILES or HAEMORRHOIDS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, and BURNS, subdues FEVER, reduces SWELLINGS, heals WOUNDS and ULCERS with greater rapidity and safety than all other known remedics.

No family or individual should be without this Prepared only by GEO, A. LATHROP, M. D., 100 East 30d St., corner 4th Avenue, New York.

Price $1.00 per bottle. 6 bottles $5.00
Do. Pintbottles $5.00. 6 pints 10.00.
All orders accompanied with remittance promptly filled, and where 6 bottles are ordered sent apress

SACTORIAL STATE

wit and Eumor.

A story is told of a wall-known gantlemen who sometimes imbles too freely, guing home late at night recently, and mistaking his shadew outlined on his front door for a man. He paused a little in surprise, and then lifting his hot, very gracefully bade him good-evening.

The shadow imitated his politeness by raising its hat, but of course said nothing.

"A very pleasant evening," said the gentlemen.

"A very plea

No reply.
"This is my house, I believe," waving his

The hand of the shadow went through the ame graceful curve.
"I should like to get in, sir, if you'll stand side;" but the shadow made no movement

"I should like to get in, sir, if you'll stand aside;" but the shadow made no movement to let him pass.

The gentleman was evidently surprised. He repeated his desire to pass in, but the shadow remaised still.

His wife, hearing her husband's voice, looked through the blind, and seeing no one but himself, asked why he didn't come in.

"So I would, my dear, but this gentleman," pointing to the shadow, "insists on blocking up the door."

His wife quietly opened the door, remarking, "That was your shadow."

"Indeed," said the pussled citizen; "well, now, I thought he was a mighty fine-looking fellow to be so impolite," and went in.

Whenever he shows a disposition now to remain out late at night, his wife has only to remind him of the shadow on the doorstep to insure a speedy return.

A Fine Old Man.

A Fine Old Mam.

The following description of "a fine old man," is by Mark Twain: —" John Wagner, the oldest man in Buffalo—one hundred and four years old—recently walked a mile and a half in two weeks. He is as cheerful and bright as any of these other old men that charge around so in the new-papers, and in every way as remarkable. Last November he walked five blocks in a rain storm, without any shelter but an umbrella, and cast his vote for Grass, remarking that he had voted for forty-seven Precidents—which was not strictly correct. His 'second crop of rich brown hast' arrived from New York yesterday, and he has a new set of teeth coming brown hair' arrived from New York yester-day, and he has a new set of teeth coming— from Philadelphia. He is to be married next week to a girl one hundred and two years old, who still takes in washing. They have been engaged eighty years, but their parents pursistently refused their consent until three days ago. John Wagner is two years older than the Bhoise Island veteran, and has never tasted a drop of liquor in his life, unless you count whiskey."

Har Elequence.

The following specimen of bar eloquence in a not distant Western state was actually in a not distant Western state was actually delivered, as we know from a correspondent, as here reported in his notes. The case was the trial of a person on a writ of inquirendo lumatico. Which side the "learned" and eloquent advocate was on it is somewhat difficult to ascertain from his speech:

"The counsel on the other side, sir, misappreheads the principle involved in this important case. Law, sir, is very simple, if we understand its elementary principles. The principle of this case, sir, is to be found in the horn-books of the profession. I hold in my hand, sir, a volume of Blackstone, sir, the great author of the English law; yes, sir, I hold in my hand, sir, that glorious magnuschartus, the foundation and bulwark of English liberty, which was wrung by the illustrious King John, sword in hand, from the bloody barons on the banks of the pleasant Bonnyunede, on that momentous occasion! But, sir, i did not intend to make a speech, sir, and as I have not examined the speech, sir, and as I have not examined the estion, sir, I submit it to the Court cos few and incongruvial remarks."

A writer remarks that there seems to be a wonderful chance for punning upon the names of poets, ancient and modern, and we submit the following list of coundrums: Who is the tallest poet?—Longfellow.

Who realized the value of words?—Words-

Who was the most warlike poet !- Shak

ho worked in precious metals !- Gold-

Who was permitted to unlock the muses' escritor?—Key.

Who was rich in minerals?—Coleridge.

What poet supposed he was infallib

Pope.
What poet was a great sufferer? - Paine.
What poet was a great sufferer? - Campbell.

Who was a musical poet? Campbell. What poet was not a goose ? Drake.

What poet was not a good ?—Irake.
What poet was blue?—Greene.
What poet was never troubled with milliners' bills ?—Hood.
What poet is well acquainted with the last fashions for men's wear?—Taylor.
What poet was not a colored man?—White.

Creeked Habita

While shaking hands with an old man, the other day, we noticed that some of his fingers were quite bent inward, and he had not the power of straightening them. Al-luding to this fact, he said, "In these crock-ed fingers there is a good text for a talk to ed fingers there is a good text for a talk to children. For over fifty years I used to drive a stage, and these bent fingers show the effects of holding the reins for so many This is the text. Is it not a suggestive

This is the text. Is it not a suggestive one? Does it not teach us how oft-repeated acts become a habit, and once abquired it romains generally through life? The old man's crooked fingers, dear chil-dren, are but an emblem of the crooked tempors, words, and actions, of men and woman.

THE HOLIDAYS—A LESSON.FROM THE HEATHEN.—The beathen Chipses have some notious that might be advantageously adopted by Christians. The way they colerate their holidays is one of them. The first thing they do is to pay off old debts and square accounts to a fraction. Money matters having been thus adjusted, they next make up old quarrels, and shake hands all round. Having thus got square, pecuniarily and socially, they eat, drink and are merry, and finally wind up with a sparhling discharge of Chinese fire-crackers. The paying of debts and the making up of quarrels is certainly a good way to begin a celebration of holidays.

(37 "You're a queer chicken," as the hen aid when she hatched out a duck. (37 Miss Polly Deer, one of the belles of dontgomery county, Indiana, weighs 500 ounds.

APPONISHING PACT.

Ladt (who is rather plain).—" My dear Lucy, when you have your photograph taken you should always go to a good place, where the man is an artist. I had mine done the other day, and it is guile beautiful!"

THE R. ENGINEER.

Ah! who ever thinks of the hold engineer, As he stands by his throttle of steel, And spurs on his stead to its maddened or reer,

In his thunderieg and poederous reel?
Like a soldier begrimed in battle's dark strife.
And brave to the cannon's hot breath,
He, too, plunges on with his long train of Unmindful of danger or death ! ful of danger or death?

Through the daylight,
Into the night,
Dark, dark,
He knows no affright;
O'er ridges
And bridges, And bridges,
Decayed or strong,
Like a mythic god he rushes slong?
Who thinks of the bold engineer?

So true to his post, like a statue he stands. With his eyes fixed fast on afar; Our own precious lives be bolds in his hands, Our wealth we give to his care. For good must he be, the bold engineer,

As he dashes from village to town,
And brings us all safe, midst a smile or a tear,

To the forms so dearly our own ! Onward he goes, Deep, deep, Through high-drifted snows;

With crossings
And tossings
In best and in rais,
O'er the gittering track be pulls the long

All hail to the bold engineer!

Manners.

Manners are the happy ways of doing things; each one a stroke of genius or of tove, now repeated or hardened into usage, love, now repeated or hardened into usage, they form at last a rich varnish, with which the routine of life is washed, and its details adorned. If they are superficial, so are the dew-drops which give such a depth to the morning meadows. Manners are very communicable; men catch them from each other. Consuelo, in the romance, bossts of municable; men catch them from each other. Consuclo, in the romance, boasts of the lessons she had given the nobles in manners, on the stage and in real life. Taima taught Napoleon the art of behaviour. Genius invents fine manners, which the baron and the baroness copy very fast, and by the advantage of a palace, better the instruction. They stereotype the lesson they have learned into a mode. The power of manner is incessant—an element as unconcealable as fire. The nobility cannot in any country be disguised, and no more in a republic or a democracy toan in a kingdom. No man can resist their influence. There are certain manners whick are learned in good society of that force, that, if a person have them, he or she must be considered, and is everywhere welcome, though without beauty, or wealth, or genius. Give a boy address and accomplishments, and you give him the mastery of palaces and fortunes where he goes; he has not the trouble of earning or ewing them; they selicit him to enter and possess.—Emerson.

I know of an aged ox who gave yet more I know of an aged ox who gave yet more extraordinary evidence of thought. Old Buck, of the famous firm of Buck of Brindle, had gone through life without being remarked for any intellectual superiority beyond respanding slowly and with a certain senatorial digoity to the ordinary commands of "Whoa, baw!" and "Whoa, gee!" He would close meekly his superb eyes when suffering from the impatient blows of his driver, and when released from work and filled with food he had a certain contemplative look as if taking his laborious life in a sensible, philosophical way. His owner was therefore accounted to find Old Buck one morning gaarding a breach in the core-field therefore accessed to and old not one morning guarding a breach in the corn-field fence. He watched him for a white in perfect amazement, the cattle had not only broken through the fence, but the tracks in the soft earth showed that they had been driven out again.

Before this opening the faithful old Nestor of the farin walked to and fro like a sentor of the farin walked to and fro like a sen-tinel, lowering his long sharp horn in pre-paration to charge whenever the hungry cattle made a move toward the tempting corn. By what instanctive process did the old ox come to the quick conclusions that prompted him to this faithful protection of his master's property?

Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, of Elmira, said something unpleasant about H. B. Smith, Congressman elect from that district. Smith remarked to him that those statements were conspicuously inexect. Beecher exclaimed, "Do you want to get up a quarrel with the Beecher family?" "No, sir," said Smith, "put I want to know if you intend to get up a fight with the Smith family?" And peace was made between the two great divisions of the human race.

CF A goat is good as a milker, but suc-

Don't He Toe Certain

Boen't Be Tee Certain.

Boys, don't be too certain. Remember that nothing is easier than to be mistaken. And if you permit yourself to be mistaken a great many times, everybody will less confidence in what you say.

"John," where's the banmer?"

"It is in the corn-bouse."

"No, it is not there; I have just been looking there."

"Well, I know it is; I saw it there not half as bour ago."

"If you say it is there it must be there of course. But suppose you go and fetch it."

John goes to the corn-house, and presently returns with a small are in his hand.

"Oh, it was the axe I saw. The handle was sticking out from a half-bushel measure. I thought it was the hammer."

I thought it was the hammer."

"But you said positively that you did see it, not that you thought you saw it. There is a great difference between the two answers. Do not permit yourself to make a positive statement, even about small matters, unless you are quite sure; for if you do, you will find the habit growing upon you, and, by-smd-by, you will tegin to make loose replies to questions of great importance. Don't be too certain!"—Young Piterrim.

T. W. Higginson has taken pains to com-pair the vital statistics of several genera-tions of two old New England families, and he fluds, to the dismay of those who mouru the physical degeneracy of woman since the days of our great grandmothers, that the stock has improved, if anything. He adds:

He adds:

"No man of middle age can look at a class of students from our older cellege-without seeing them to be physically superior to the same number of college boys, taken twenty-five years ago. The organization of girls being far more delicate and complicated, the same reform reaches them complicated, the same reform reaches them these promptly, but it reaches them at last. The little girls of the present day eat better food, wear more healthful clothing, and breathe more fresh air than their mothers did. The introduction of India rubber boots and water-proof cloaks alone has given a fresh lease of life to multidudes of women who otherwise would have been kept boused whenever it so much as sprinkled. It is desirable, certainly, to vecerate our grandmothers, but I sm inclined to think, on the whole, that their great-grand-daughters will be the best."

The Poisoned Tourne.

It is a custom in Africa for bunters, when something quite as dangerous, and much more common in communities, which has its poison on its tongue. Indeed, your chances of escape from a serpent are greater. The worst snakes usually glide away in fear at the approach of man, unless disturbed or attacked. But this creature, whose poison larks in his tongue, attacks without provocation, and follows up its victim with untiring perseverance. I will tell you his name, so you will always be able to shun him. He is called [Slanderer. He poisons worse than a serpent. Often his venom atrikes to the life of a whole family or neighpoison on its tongue. Indeed, your chances borhood, destroying all peace and confidence.

A correspondent, writing of Longfellow, tells this: "One day a kindly old gentleman, whose sympathies had come down from a former generation evidently, rang the poet's door-bell, and was shown in to the master of the house. "Is this house Washington's headquarters?" he saked. "Yes," the poet kindly answered. "Well, I heard so, and I came to take a look at the place." "You are very welcome," was the reply, and the simple-mided old stranger was shown through the chambers, up stairs and down, very courtsonely by the poet himself, and his appetite for historical association was gratified, when finally he turned to Mr. Longfellow and expressing his satisfaction and thanks, was interested sufficiently in the polite hoat to ask, simply, "What is your name?" "My name is Longfellow." "Long-fellow-Longfellow? Well, now, I did hear of a man of that name down in Bil-rick-ey (Bilerios). Are you any kin to him?"

A young Louisvillian enjoyed a tete-a-tete with his beloved, in a doctor's study on a recent evening, till a skeleton hanging up began to rattle ominonally. Both thought ghosts, and fled. It was found that a rat was building his nest in the skull, and his movements caused the rattling.

AGRICULTURAL.

Steaming Food for Stock.

This process will cost much more for the fixtures necessary to be used, and will require much more exact care than eating and socking the fedder. This care, however, will make every pound of food sell with the fullest effect in the production of meat, milk, or strength. We have visited several farms where the practice of steaming is adopted, found the system approved, and the stook looking well. The product of milk in the cows was very considerably increased; the horses were sleek and strong and the young cattle with soft, loose skim, and having every way a thrifty appearance. The most thorough example of steaming food for stock is afforded in the case of Mr. E. W. Stewart, of North Evans, N. Y., in which he details his experience of ten years in steaming food for a large stock of cattle and horses, and states why steaming is beneficial.

1. He says it renders mouldy hay, straw.

ficial.

1. He says it renders mouldy hay, straw, and corn-stalks sweet and palatable.

2. It diffuses the edor of the shorts, cornmeal, oil-meal, carrots, or whatever is mixed with the feed, through the whole mase.

3. It softens the tough fibre of the dry corn-stalk, rys-straw, and other hard material, rendering it almost like green succulent food, and easily masticated and digested by the animal.

4. It enables the feeds to the strain in the feeds to the strain in the feeds to the strain feeds to t rial, rendering it almost like green succulent food, and easily masticated and digested by the animal.

4. It emables the feeder to turn everything raised into food for the stock, without lessening the value of his measure. Indeed, the manure made from steamed food decomposes more readily, and is therefore more valuable than when used in a fresh state. Manure so made is always ready for use, and is regarded by those who have used it as much more valuable, for the same bulk, than that made from uncooked food.

5. It cures incipient heaves in horses; arrests a cough, allevistes constipation, and seems to have all the good influences of grass—the natural food of animals.

6. It produces a marked difference in the appearance of the animal, at once causing the coat to become smooth and of a brighter color; regulates the digestion, so that the animal is more quictand contented; enables fattening stock to eat their food with less labor, and to fatten them in one-third less time than on uncooked food. It gives working animals time to eat all that is necessary for them in the intervals of labor, which is important with working horses.

7. It saves, be says, at least one-third of the food. He found two bushels of cut and cooked hay to satisfy cows as well as three bushels of uncooked hay, and the manure in the case of the uncooked hay contained much the most fibrous matter.

Governor Boutwell—now Secretary of the Treasury—has for several years practiced cutting the fooder, as his farm in Greton, Treasury—has for several years practiced outling the fodder, at his farm in Greton, Mass., throwing it into a large chest made for the purpose, and letting boiling water upon it; then cover tight, stand twelve hours and feed it out. In this way he found the cattle are all clean, as meal of some kind had been added, and had flavored the whole. The cowa yielded milk freely, and large quantities of the finest butter were made from it, extending, we are informed, far into the wincer season. Treasury—has for several years practiced cutting the fodder, at his farm in Greton, into the winter season.

Boilers are now constructed well adapted to steaming food for stock, so that the whole to steaming food for stock, so that the whole apparatus may be set in motion at a very moderate cost. It will be economical for those about setting up a steamer, to visit some already in use, and spending a day by it to learn how it is constructed, and how to "run it" when ready for use.

The present high prices of hay may prove an opportunity to thousands of farmers to turn some portion of it isto cash, and at the same time keep the usual amount of stock in good condition, by being more careful and systematic in feeding out less valuable fedder.—N. E. Farmer.

Social Intercourse for Farmers.

Farmers necessarily live at considerable distances from each other, and in conse-quence of this and their habits of steady page of the man and their many of steady habor, confine themselves too much to their own fields and firesides. They and their families need recreation, need pleasures need something to counteract the effect of the constant labor in which they are entered. It is a custom in Africa for bunters, when they have killed a poisonous snake, to cut off its head and carefully bury it deep in the ground. A naked foot stepping on one of these fasgs would be fatally wounded. The poison would spread in a very short time all through the system. This vectom lasts a long time, and is as deadly after the snake is dead as before. Our cruel ludians used to dip the points of their arrows in this poison—so, if they made the least wound, their victim would be sure to die. The snake's poison is in its teeth; but there is something quite as dangerous, and much before the constant labor in which they are engaged. The mechanic in the village or city has bis mind frequently drawn away from his work by that which is going on around him, but the farmer, being differently situated, finds nothing to break up the monotony unless he seeks for it elsewhere. It is quite probable that more work would be accomplished and a better tone of feeling be exposed to discount the constant labor in which they are engaged. The mechanic in the village or city has bis mind frequently drawn away from his work by that which is going on around him, but the farmer, being differently situated, finds nothing to break up the monotony unless he seeks for it elsewhere. It is quite probable that more work would be accomplished and a better tone of feeling be exposed to discount the constant labor in which we have been as the constant labor in the village or city has bis mind frequently drawn away from his work by that which is going on around him, but the farmer, being differently situated, finds nothing to break up the monotony unless he seeks for it elsewhere. It is quite and the constant and the constant about the constant labor in which we have been end and the constant labor in which we have been end and the constant labor in which we have been end and the constant labor in the village of the probable that more work would be accomplished and a better tone of feeling be exposed to distance the constant labor in the p half day each week were given to social intercourse with fellow farmers, instead of devoting six full days each week to unremitting labor. After a day spent pleasantly away from home, the labor is not so irksome—the laborer is happier. Allowing as much was not accomplished by giving a little time to relaxation, it should be borne in mind that food and raiment for the family, forage for the stock, and money for the bank, are not the only things worth striving for. We need happiness as well. But if a portion of this time be given to a wide awake farmers' club, ideas will be gained, practical knowledge acquired, which in time will bring about results far in excess of those which will be realized by the farmer who does not improve these opportunities.—N. E. Farmer.

Working Bulto.

Working Bulles.

Why should they not be taught to work the same as oxen? It is believed that it is no more difficult to break them. We have ourselves reen bulls work singly with as much doellity and efficiency as oxen. The ring in the nose with a strap to it gives the driver complete control over the animal under all circumstances. They draw well and steadily and can be taught to start and stop with the same readiness as oxen. A writer in the Carolina Farmer mentions how useful he finds his bull and cart, which does a great deal of hauling, going to the mill, dr., and is managed by a boy who could not manage a horse. All that is necessary is to get in the way of breaking in bulls; and once begau it will soon be seen how easily they can be controlled and of how much value they will prove to the farmer, especially in the busy season.—Germanioum Telegraph.

Hinto about Flowers.

House plants ought to be stimulated gently once or twice a week. Rain-water, so refreshing to summer flowers, always contains ammonts, which also abounds in all liquid manures. If you take an ounce of pulverized carbonate of ammonia, dissolved in one galton of water, it will make spring-even more stimulating to your plants then rain-water. If you water your plants once in two weeks with guesse water (see table-spoonfal to a pail of water) they will grow more thrifty. Obichen menuse dissolved in water is excellent. Always keep the sell in your flower pots lesse. A common hair-pin med daily will stir the earth sufficiently.— Beston Journal of Chemistry.

THE RIDELER.

My 6, 19, 28, 7, 14, is a mountaineus country in Austria.

My 28, 29, 20, 2, 4, 15, is a sea mentioned in the Bible.

My 15, 11, 20, 4, 22, is a range of mountains in South America.

in South America. My 20, 21, 25, 29, 28, 6, is a division of the water over a precipica.

My 9, 7, 27, 16, 6, 4, 28, 21, 18, 34, 2, is a volcano in the Antarolic Continent.

My whole was a difficult feet first accomplished in August, 1787.

RUDOLPH.

NO SOUN

I am composed of 19 letters.

My 11, 14, 7, 17, is a river.

My 7, 6, 7, 18, 14, is a res.

My 1, 3, 4, 7, 15, is a girl's name.

My 9, 12, 7, 9, is a lake.

My 6, 15, 5, 9, 7, 16, 19, 1, are in The Post.

My 10, 7, 10, 13, 14, is a wheel that is not Mathematical Problem.

Determine the average of the areas of all the triangles having a perimeter of 42 reds. ARTEMAS MARTIN. McKean, Erie Co., Pa.

Why does the minister have more wives than any one else? Ans.—Because he often marries a couple at a time.

That what kind of a building would you name did you wish to learn a secret? Ans.—Hotel. (O tell?)

Why is a girl not a noun? Ans.—Because alse (a lass) is an interjection.

What vegetable is most like a teetotaler? Ans.—The pot-hater.

The pot-hater.

Ans.—A bousemaid,

The way of the control of the co

Palindreme.-Prize Offer.

The person sending the best original Palindrome to my address before the 1st of March, 1871, will receive my photograph and a copy of "Our Schoolday Visitor Mathematical Annual."

A Palindrome is a sentence or verse that reads the same backwards as forwards.

ARTEMAS MARTIN.

Box 70, McKean, Eric Co., Pu.

Answers to Last. ENIGMA—Cleansing the stables of Aureas y turning a river through them. RIDDLE Ravenscroft Academy.

RECEIPTS. HEAD-CHEESE. -After the beads have HEAD-CHEEK.—After the heads have been properly trimmed (i. e., minus eyes, ears, and nose,) and cut up and soaked in cold water (two days at least,) to extract the blood, wash them in warm water, and put on to boil; cook them in plenty of water till the hones drop out, then set off to cool, pouring all the liquid into one vessel and the meat in another; as soon as cool enough the meat in another; as soon as cool enough pick out every bone with your fingers, then chop the meat fine, the same as though making bash, season with plenty of pepper, salt, and pulverized sage. It is an improvement for those who are fond of high seasoning, to chop up a good large red pepper with the mest, and put just a pinch of ground spice and cloves in with the pepper and salt. Saim all the grease you can off the liquid, and put it and the meat back in the pot, let all boil together a few moments, then pour in a pan to cool.

pan to cool.

If there are pigs' feet to pickle, boil at the same time and put the water they are cooked in in the head-cheese.

RICE AND APPLE PUDDING.—Pick over and wash a teacapful of best rice. Steam it, until tender, in two cups of cold water; spread it over a quart or three pints of good ripe apples, quartered; pour over one or two cups of milk, if preferred, or omit the milk and add a little water to the apples. Half a cup of white sugar may be aprinkled over the apples, or sugar may be added at the table, if preferred.

To an unperverted appetite, this and several of these puddings will relish without the sugar, or indeed the milk, if carefully baked, and if rich apples are used.

veral of these puddings will relish without the sugar, or indeed the milk, if carefully baked, and if rich apples are used.

A good rice pudding is made by stirring two cups of pitted and stewed raisins into the steamed rice, milk and sugar, and baked an hour.

FELOKS.—The following simple recipe for the cure of felons we clip from a far-off exchange:—", Many persons suffer extremely from felome on the finger. These afflictions are not only very painful, but not unfrequently occasion permanent crippling of the members affected. The following simple prescription is recommended as a cure for this distressing allment: Take common rock salt, such as is used in salting down beef or pork, and mix with spirits of turpentine in equal parts, and as it gots dry put on more, and in twenty-four hours you are cared. The felon will be dead; it will do you no harm to try it."

2000